I have always been drawn to the Nissan GT-R. Partially because one of my former bosses had one and told me I'd never be able to afford one. I'll prove him wrong.

I can't explain it, but a corvette stingray (older models like a 69) is one of those cars I saw someone driving as a kid and was so impressed they've had a spot in my heart.

A huracans only boring if you're both deaf and blind

Sure sometimes you forget that you're driving a supercar, whack it into corsa, drop a few gears and flow it, congrats you've got a boner

They're boring to me. Plus they're so common here lol. Basically a Civic.

After you've driven the Aventador, the Huracan feels lame. Also I prefer the look for the Audi R8 over the Huracan myself.

Yeah Aventador is nice, low speeds and cruising though its mega aids, love the single clutch for personality when you're getting on it and feel but sure i can agree to an extent. But, Huracan can do everything, can be a normal car, and sounds fucking nuts and an amazing drive, although aventador i do agree is a much more special car, but that is the nature of doors going up and a beautiful v12

If you're bored driving a huracan though i honestly am lost
