

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: HYIP, Pyramid & Ponzi Schemes?

Investor - October 6, 2022, 6:50 am

So I'll start off by asking a question that many probably won't want to ask.

I see a LOT of money making methods, some with ambiguity, or faulty advertising that just seems beyond logic, and reason.

As per the disallowed blackhat activity policies that HF has. I saw the section outlining "HYIP, Pyramid & Ponzi"

But feel there may be some ambiguity of what is classified as HYIP, because a LOT of the titles that the ebooks have are misleading, and I have read over deal disputes which from time to time, seem to have buyers remorse regarding things such as saturation, false advertising, and sellers abusing their policies to keep the buyers money.

I understand, and emphasize I understand hackforums, and its staff do not get involved in deals, and do not endorse any products/services.

That being said at what point do money making methods "Cross the line".

Omniscient - October 6, 2022, 9:43 am

(Oct 6, 2022 06:50 AM)Investor Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That being said at what point do money making methods "Cross the line".

I suggest you don't report any threads if you're not able to understand our Help Docs and the site policies. Plenty of other members do understand them and correctly send reports.