Thread: How Do You Feel About Change In Life?

Blockonome - October 7, 2022, 11:20 am

Hi guys, after today, my life is going to change 360 completely, not because my own choice, but because of some things, that I simply do not have control over.

How do you feel about change in life, that you cannot control and do you embrace it or do you feel scared about it?

Not every change in life is bad. Take the change and try to understand this is how life is now, and then try to think of a way to live in the best way within your current situation. Hope you get stuff figured out and make the best out of the here and now.

When you leave the comfortable zone everything is hard.

I love change. I love the newness of it, the unpredictability of it, and the excitement of it. I love that change can mean a new beginning, a new adventure, or a new opportunity. I love that change can be scary, but it's also always full of potential. I embrace change in my life and I encourage it in others. I believe that change is what keeps us growing and evolving, and that's what makes life so exciting.

As Bruce Lee said, be like water. You have to be able to take on any shape in life.

Sometimes change is good, just need to keep that in mind. Everything happens for a reason.

Embrace it as it was meant to be. Sometimes it's not always the outcome you'd desire but it is what it is, you just gotta roll with it.

Change is scary but inevitable. It's better to embrace it and plan for it to happen again... and again.

It sucks until you lean into it and learn the new system.

If it is on the upside, It would be much appreciatable. If it is a downside, I have to sit up and build up my mind.
