a couple ones, theyre NOT in an Order

- Spy Family, new Anime kinda cool, its about a weird family which came together and all of them are strong af, def recommend.

- Black Summoner, OP guy gets reincarnated and couldve choose in his past life his new Magic Skills in the new world, by mistake he choosed the most OG Power and is basically the best.

- The Daily Life of the Immortal King, kinda cool tho. Guy is OP + Magic. a bit too much Harem lifestyle, hes trying to chill, doing normal school but is OP so theres much attention on his ass.

all of them on aniworld

e.// misunderstood.. these arent mine "of all time" but the of all time animes everyone does know anyway.

My personal opinion (not my favs, but my favs in the under rate group)

- Lupin the 3rd : super underrated, cannot understand why.

- Captain Tsubasa : when i was a kid , this one was a must watch.

- Tokyo Ghoul : just because i think is a lil bit underrated

Ofc those are anime from my teenager's days, right now i'm not into it as i was back in the day.

DerMensch24 - October 24, 2022, 12:00 pm

- Legend of the Galactic Heroes (Star Wars, George Lucas's franchise should change its name to something else)
- Naoki Urasawa's Monster (Arguably the greatest thriller in anime and among the best in manga)
- Planetes (Space garbage collectors slice of life)

Honorable mentions (lesser known):

- Hajime no Ippo (if you weren't a boxing fan before, you will be now. Also jet noises.)
- Mushishi (episodic journey of a spirit whisperer)
- Berserk 1997 (Just read the manga, but this isn't so bad)

Honorable mentions (mainstream):

- Gundam franchise (personal favorites of mine being the original 1979 Mobile Suit Gundam & its side stories and my guilty pleasure Mobile Fighter G Gundam)
- Full Metal Alchemist (2003) -> FMA: Conquerer of Shamballa -> FMA: Brotherhood (you can simply watch Brotherhood, but watching all three in that order is an enjoyable experience)
- Studio Bones lineup: Cowboy Bebop -> Samurai Champloo -> Space Dandy
- The three "Westerns": Outlaw Star, Cowboy Bebop (yes this is a repeat), Trigun
- The thriller duo of '06: Code Geass & Death Note (if you're a newbie basically just beginners material)
- Tengen Toppa Gurren Lagann (a GAR anime for the ages)

Honorable mentions (film time!):

- Studio Ghibli films (any will do, except for Tales of Earthsea which many have found repugnant. Nausicaa of the Valley of the Wind technically is not a Ghibli film but often considered to be one as it was created by the Ghibli staff prior to the studio's creation.)
- Royal Space Force: The Wings of Honneamise (doesn't have the strongest story, however for Gainax's first animation attempt that nearly bankrupted them, the art speaks for itself).
- Classic cyberpunk duo: Akira & Ghost in the Shell

I'm pretty vanilla when it comes to anime

1. Naruto (got kind of boring though)
2. Is Avatar: The Last Airbender considered anime?
3. Inuyasha

Berserk seemed ok

Mac Miller - October 26, 2022, 10:22 am

Chainsaw man is actually pretty good so far

TB12GOAT - October 26, 2022, 4:45 pm

Chainsaw man recently started, shit is fire!

SIM-2502833 - October 26, 2022, 5:01 pm

Surprised no one mentioned Steins gate, one punch man, or Hunter x Hunter. Mostly short anime that are good.
