

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Do different colour M&Ms have different flavours?

Slughtera - October 11, 2022, 5:17 am

Discuss.... I'm starting to think they do

Koyote - October 11, 2022, 5:19 am

I used to think they do but I'm sure it's just a psychological trick. Sure they have different components in their colouring, but I don't think they influence the taste beyond the tiniest level we can't consciously register, so I imagine our brains make us think they taste slightly differently because we expect them to.

Koyote - October 11, 2022, 5:19 am

I used to think they do but I'm sure it's just a psychological trick. Sure they have different components in their colouring, but I don't think they influence the taste beyond the tiniest level we can't consciously register, so I imagine our brains make us think they taste slightly differently because we expect them to.

Slughtera - October 11, 2022, 5:23 am

(Oct 11, 2022 05:19 AM)TheCuriousCoyote Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I used to think they do but I'm sure it's just a psychological trick. Sure they have different components in their colouring, but I don't think they influence the taste beyond the tiniest level we can't consciously register, so I imagine our brains make us think they taste slightly differently because we expect them to.
yes, it makes perfect sense. but still doubtful

Yuno - October 11, 2022, 5:28 am

That's a negative ghost rider. Skittles on the other hand.

Lovely? - October 11, 2022, 5:30 am

It's milky-chocolate in a colored sugarshell, the colors don't represent any different flavours. Used to think so too, i guess it's sorta like placebo like coyote was talking about, you expect something and feed ur own delusion.

BiNBo - October 11, 2022, 5:37 am

At one point in time I actually ran multiple bulk candy stores, and unfortunately I've always had a massive sweet tooth. In turn, I tried everything, especially all the M&M's and specialty variations too. Beyond the difference in the peanut filled M&M's and regular alongside some of the limited edition fillings, they all taste the same. I performed extensive taste studies this I promise you lmao.

Market research....it was all for market research.....nothing else.

Michael - October 11, 2022, 5:58 am

I don't believe they do, no.

Deany - October 11, 2022, 5:59 am

(Oct 11, 2022 05:17 AM)Slughtera Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Discuss.... I'm starting to think they do
Hmm, you might actually be on to something.

Pikachu - October 11, 2022, 6:05 am

They've all tasted the same to me, never found any difference.

Seaking - October 11, 2022, 6:13 am

(Oct 11, 2022 05:17 AM)Slughtera Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Discuss.... I'm starting to think they do
Easy test you can run at home. Reach into a bag blind folded and eat one. See if you can guess it.
From my understanding they all taste the same. For an added bonus toss a sour skittle in the group for fun.

Yin Yang - October 11, 2022, 6:14 am

(Oct 11, 2022 06:05 AM)Pikachu Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) They've all tasted the same to me, never found any difference.Same here, didn't notice any different flavors

mickeh - October 11, 2022, 6:31 am

Nah its just sugar coating

molly69 - October 11, 2022, 6:36 am

Nah mate it's just different colors. Same shit inside.

Tom Law - December 30, 2023, 8:40 am

Of course they do. Slightly but chocolate takes over

Purgatory - August 15, 2024, 9:54 pm

I don't think they do, but, who knows lmao.

famoupo - August 16, 2024, 2:43 am

M&m is for liite children