

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Pink sauce lady

xyyyxx - October 14, 2022, 6:42 am

Bruh, so I just watched the kritikal video of him watching the Karamo show where he had the pink sauce lady as a guest. First of all this post is mostly about Karamo, the broad with the sauce has been infamous for good reason. I couldnt believe my eyes or ears when Karamo ended up sided with the chef rather than the critic. The bitch (chef) potentially poisoned thousands of people with her sauce due to negligence.

Why the fuck would Karamo ruin his reputation like that by going on his show and straight up ingnoring the facts. I was a fan of his since he seemed like a nice and sincere guy on queer eye, regardless of how you feel about the gays, queer eye has done some amazing things for people. He always seemed like a respectable person, but I cant help but feel he blindly sided with the chef since she was also a poc..... smh.

Im really just ranting on, but for some reason seeing Karamo do that shit kinda outraged me. Thank god hes getting hounded in the comments, my opinion is a pretty widespread one, ive found.

heres a link to kritikals video penguinz0 vid

This is a kinda layered situation, I guess ill leave yall with a question - Are you on the chef/karamo's side, or are you a concerned consumer like the rest of us?

Koyote - October 14, 2022, 8:54 am

Can you give me a rundown of this pink sauce thing? I've seen it mentioned a few times online and still can't seem to understand what's going on.

Edit: Never mind, just got to the bottom of it.

BiNBo - October 14, 2022, 10:15 am

I've heard a little bit about the sauce before, but I'm not exactly sure what happened. Anybody care to link or give a quick explanation?

Upgrader - October 14, 2022, 10:16 am

(Oct 14, 2022 10:14 AM)phantomman55 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) why does it bother you? I think he took her side because she isn't out there trying to hurt people. She's just stupid about health safety and how everything works. Most people that jump into a business like this doesn't know every detail that is needed before starting. I also think you'r over reacting on the killing part.

It is literally making people very sick, this is a bigger issue than "oh she's just stupid" (Oct 14, 2022 10:15 AM)BiNBo Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I've heard a little bit about the sauce before, but I'm not exactly sure what happened. Anybody care to link or give a quick explanation?

Lady has a "pink sauce" that expires before you get it essentially, therefore making you sick.

xyyyxx - October 14, 2022, 10:59 am

(Oct 14, 2022 10:14 AM)phantomman55 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) why does it bother you? I think he took her side because she isn't out there trying to hurt people. She's just stupid about health safety and how everything works. Most people that jump into a business like this doesn't know every detail that is needed before starting. I also think you'r over reacting on the killing part.

A person as a business owner can still hold accountability, she for sure learned the hard way. I never said anything about killing (dunno where that came from) but there were some for real health risks involved with what she was sending out. Im not upset she sold a product I just wished that once she was met with resitance she had handled herself with some more humility rather than being defensive as hell. Just a character defect with the chef AND Karamo.

The outrage was at Karamo, that he would even have such a cut and dry case on the show (a show I didnt know existed) then blindly defend someone who is in the wrong, thats what the outrage was for.

Seaking - October 14, 2022, 12:19 pm

TLDR Lady got famous on social media for selling a pink sauce you dip food in. She had no idea how to actually run a business and wasn't taking necessary food safety precautions and some people claimed to have gotten sick. The old saying I've been told still applies - ignorance of the law isn't an excuse. If she wanted to start a business she should of looked into what was required. If she couldn't figure it out she should of asked someone who did know.

BiNBo - October 14, 2022, 12:23 pm

(Oct 14, 2022 12:19 PM)Seaking Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) TLDR Lady got famous on social media for selling a pink sauce you dip food in. She had no idea how to actually run a business and wasn't taking necessary food safety precautions and some people claimed to have gotten sick. The old saying I've been told still applies - ignorance of the law isn't an excuse. If she wanted to start a business she should of looked into what was required. If she couldn't figure it out she should of asked someone who did know.

This is exactly what I'm thinking. People start businesses all the time, and consult experts in the respective field about all of these kinds of things. I feel like the ignorance and negligence here could be her undoing, all she had to do was research or find a professional who already knows. Especially in the food industry, there's a lot of room for liability if you drop the ball like this.

LeetSpeed - October 18, 2022, 11:08 pm

It's all good until the pink sauce eats your insides.

Goku - October 19, 2022, 6:10 am

Holy shit what a shit show and such a cringe person.

The crowd clapping for her just makes me sick...

(Oct 14, 2022 10:14 AM)phantomman55 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) why does it bother you? I think he took her side because she isn't out there trying to hurt people. She's just stupid about health safety and how everything works. Most people that jump into a business like this doesn't know every detail that is needed before starting. I also think you'r over reacting on the killing part.

It thinks it bothers us because she is denying responsibility. And since we aren't kids, we should be responsible for what we do. Being an "entrepreneur" isn't an excuse for fucking up on the health department.

Honestly, are you underestimating how much damage something can be that isn't researched for ingestion?