Thread: USA Marketplace to sell goods

ACP - October 20, 2022, 1:41 am

Are there any USA marketplaces (Facebook or others) where I could sell an extra MacBook or something and hope to get atleast 90% of the price?

Nothing bulk, just have an extra MacBook I wanna get rid off for money

Drop your suggestions please

Facebook marketplace is probably your best bet aside from Ebay. People interested in macbooks generally aren't going to worry about 10% and just buy from an apple store if the difference is small.

Is it opened?

You realize when its opened and turned on you immediately lose more than 10% of the value, right? (30%)

Fully sealed and unopened

Try and see if you can get into adjacent cities.

Ah 12% is fine too, I'll check those out

I'm not sure what groups on Facebook because they're all just filled with stupid stuff as far as I could see

Even if it was open, I have seen people re-sealing their items to make it worth more.
It's not really that hard to do.

There is also OfferUP. That seems popular too.

I can also suggest OfferUp. Have sold a few Apple products (iPhones/iPads) on there and on average sold in less than a week (depending on condition of course)

I primarily use FB Market, Ebay (fees are fucked but can find a buyer easily), and OfferUp - all 3 get the job done for personal belongings

Be wary of scammers on OfferUp though, they are pretty easy to spot but if it's your first time using it, be careful - especially since you're selling an Apple product
