Thread: What do YOU do after you get fired?

shakur123 - October 25, 2022, 12:44 pm

After you work for a X company or brand, do you still use / buy their products? do you still recommend them to friends or just cut ties completely?, I want to hear your thoughts on this neightworks. - October 25, 2022, 12:57 pm

Is it a major company? I was fired from a 100 billion dollar company and I will still rag on it an leak secrets, but I go out drinking almost weekly with the people I met there and I still recommend some of the products.

Fkn - October 25, 2022, 1:02 pm

Depends on what reason you got fired, no?

Vibe - October 25, 2022, 1:11 pm

I never been fired so not sure what I would do

Lrrr - October 25, 2022, 1:11 pm

Depends on how much access I have...

OCTRAIN - October 25, 2022, 1:24 pm

All depends on if I deserved to get fired or not

SIM-587985 - October 25, 2022, 1:35 pm

Continue masturbating I guess.

No I don't buy their products. Not until everyone I knew there quit.

Aeowulf - October 25, 2022, 2:28 pm

I've never been fired thankfully.

SIM-3343347 - October 25, 2022, 2:32 pm

File unemployed papers to local gov & get paid for not working.

Truth - October 25, 2022, 2:35 pm

honestly, it shouldn't even be worth your time thinking about such past.

Just move on.

In fact, maybe put yourself in a position where you can't get fired.

Good advice. Just move on.

Sometimes when you got fired, It gives you more opportunity to get a job at a bigger company.

Pug Life - October 25, 2022, 3:37 pm

Really depends, but I got fired before because I always say what I think, if a CEO can't handle it because they have a huge ego, fuck 'em.

Never obey because the only thing some ppl have is money and or they're work. Fuck 'em and go on.

I didn't get fired now (or at least to my knowledge I guess)

A few years I was fired from a semi big company and I still have a lot of secrets, I don't disclose them I don't know really why, just don't feel comfortable I guess

Prettykitty - October 25, 2022, 4:47 pm

I think it would depend on the situation, but I haven't been fired so I can't say.

Charlie Sheen - October 25, 2022, 4:49 pm

It really depends on the situation. It would depend on if the firing felt deserved or how they handled it.

Blockonome - October 25, 2022, 4:50 pm

I will yes, because if the brand is good, it is worth it. If it was not good, I would not work for them.

N - October 25, 2022, 4:52 pm

First thing you should do is find another job?

Zeus - October 25, 2022, 5:48 pm

Fuck them off and have a party!

Lyralei - October 25, 2022, 6:06 pm

I wouldn't know, I've never been actually "employed", but I would be devastated, I guess.

Ok this sounds interesting, access to information or to higher management or what exactly?

I call my AA sponsor to tell him how mad I am.

Then I apply elsewhere and keep it pushin

Jinu - October 25, 2022, 9:39 pm

It depends on the reason. If fault is with me I'll accept to use their products. If they do it deliberately for internal politics, I'll definitely stop using it and won't promote even if they produce good products or anything.

Nate - October 25, 2022, 9:40 pm

Unfortunately I've never got fired (I woulda claimed that unemployment tho)

Laughing Man - October 25, 2022, 9:51 pm

Shake it off, start researching and get a new job. Don't let the world kick you in the teeth.

Juoku - October 25, 2022, 11:13 pm

I think this really depends on how things ended exactly, I got fired from a place I worked in for over 4 years, it ended badly and they were dicks so I wouldn't recommend them or use them

????? - October 25, 2022, 11:18 pm

I used to work for Sprint, after I was let go - I made sure to cancel my plan with them as well. If they won't support me, I won't support them.

Thank god T-mobile bought them out.

Mac Miller - October 26, 2022, 6:06 am usually chill for a bit and figure out my next move, where I'm gonna apply to, what I'm gonna do yk

Money- - October 26, 2022, 6:18 am

Well common sense obviously , whatever you think of I will do it.

Sell the company data, leak info , bla bla as long as I have something against that company pretty much expect all the usual negative stuff.

I mean there's a obviously some bad reason u got fired , for me is either I got caught red handed or I got something against their staffs and upper guys.

LeetSpeed - October 26, 2022, 10:14 am

Depends, last place I have fired from I cut ties with most the people as they tried to use me as a scapegoat for their problems.

(Oct 25, 2022 07:34 PM)shakur123 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Lets say you dont deserve it, for the sake of making it interesting

First things first, I am adding protection to every excel sheet I have ever created for the company

Secondly, I will be emailing all clients detailing the bad practice by the company as well as sharing cost prices for any products or services sold

Thirdly, I will send a email to my line manager and directors, copying in as many people in the company as possible, Detailing the fact I have been fired unlawfully and request for them to explain the full reasoning for me being fired with evidence

Finally, I am going to take the biggest dump of my life and not flush ??

Worked as a Technical Support Administrator 13 years ago.

I got fired for just drinking a few beers out of my shift timings. but I thank them now because I'm in a far better position leaving them afterward.

maybe it was divine intervention. but then I don't really believe in a God.

And what was your position back then? do you "thank them" or hate them for the injustice?

Again im so curious how pple react to the firing, its something that i can relate and think about all the ways that pple choose to act after they encounter this well, I don't thank them. I had a situation wherein I had some injury and I needed to call my company even though my shift was over already. they said a reputed employee like me should not get drunk and be a part of some mess up that police has to be involved and shit like this.

they just didn't give a fuck about my part of the story and the justifications. IDK who I should thank but I'm happy I'm not a part of them.

Well it seems you should thank yourself to see the good side of that situation and putting yourself in a better situation at the moment

Yeah, I guess you're right. I never really paid my head after the incident. I was just happy to focus on my further studies and get myself involved in what I really wanted to do.

Today, I feel like I earned 100x more than what they could retain me for.

I have not been able to hold a job down more than like 3 or 4 months and I've been in the workforce for about 5 years now. Of course these are some shitty jobs that hurt my soul to do, so I'm hoping I'll be able to hold one down after school.

Sage - October 27, 2022, 4:23 am

It mostly will depend on reason of getting fired and if their product isn't fire then won't be recommend while also am working there

No hard feelings, I knew how it works when I signed up

I will still use AWS lol

mranny69 - October 27, 2022, 2:45 pm

go rage and party! always a great thing to do. then the next day get your ass back to work somewhere/ with something

Slyboo.ts - October 27, 2022, 2:55 pm

I've been canned from one job out of the many I've worked in my lifetime, and I just logically went with it and found another.

Cooligan - October 27, 2022, 2:58 pm

I just move on with my life tbh lol. I don't hold a grudge, especially if I was fired over something. Now if it was something dumb, sure I might tell my friends about how stupid the company is, or if I was let go so they could cut costs like Amazon loves to do.

But really, I'd just be out looking for a new job almost asap. Can't let the money stop flowing.

Blame - October 27, 2022, 9:04 pm

Depends. If the product/service is high quality I might keep using/buying it. If I know its shit I cut ties.

I love to cut ties with the people or things or whatever it is that is messing up with my mental health

AcademyAwardz - October 28, 2022, 1:16 pm

I've never been fired. But if I was, I would have a hard time using their products or supporting their business. Now, if I leave the company I have no problem spending money there.

630 - October 28, 2022, 6:33 pm

I've never been fired so it's hard for me to relate but I feel like it's situational. In all honesty I'd be pissed so probably cut ties. If it were food service never going there again however if a large clothes company I probably wouldn't switch brands if I liked their stuff.

???? - October 28, 2022, 7:55 pm

If they offer a good product/service, then no bitter feelings about it
