Thread: Are warning levels permanent?

Fitzy - November 10, 2022, 2:30 pm

So I got a warning the other day for posting something in a thread (I forget what tbh) and I have a 25% warning rate now.

Are these permanent? Or do they go away over time.

HEISENPUG - November 10, 2022, 2:32 pm

they go away with time, nothing to worry about unless you keep fucking up lol

Please read the Help Documents. They aren't permanent. They do go away. But I think if you get four of them you'll lose your account here. Also try to read the room of the board as best you can, but first stop Help Documents to avoid getting more. If you don't read them you'll have a lot of problems here.

Negative.

The more % you have the longer you have limited access. Even at 100% it's still just limited access.

They go away, I've seen plenty of people with over 5 previous warnings.

Oh Ok. I thought if you got 100% all at the same time you got closed.

I wasn't telling you off, but just letting you know that staff do close accounts and get annoyed if you break rules in the Help Documents so it's the first rule here that you need to read them. I should probably re-read them as I haven't re-read them myself in probably a year.

but if you get 100% you will get perma banned.

Awesome, thank u so much! :)

You broke one of the Marketplace Violation rules.

Expiration Date

Quote:3 Weeks, 5 Days, 13 Hours

Nate - November 10, 2022, 7:52 pm

In quick it depends on what infraction you make

Tando - January 30, 2023, 9:04 pm

Try your best to read through the rules and be nice to people, even if you don't want to be nice.
