Are you guys afraid of flying ? I personally would say that i m afraid of flying. When the plane is in turbulence i think i m dead. Or when it just does weird sounds i think i m dead haha i hope u know what i mean . What about you guys?

Fix Yo Bottles - December 5, 2022, 1:32 pm

read up on the technology to help you feel better.. Being aware that a plane can not be taken down by turbulence will help.

I've never been scared of flying tbh.

Zexo - December 5, 2022, 2:13 pm

Nope its pretty safe. Now helicopters those are a different story. Things can go bad fast in those.

Not saying I wouldn't get in one but def not as often as planes.

Just keep in mind that you're gonna be alright while flying. You'll get over it eventually thats how i do it when i fly . i pray to god and just coinflip it and jump into the plane

Goku - December 5, 2022, 2:56 pm

I think that you're afraid of dead itself more than the experience of flying. You should consult someone regarding that or read things. If you believe in God, then know that's all going to be fine.

Not always true. It really depends I have lots of pilot friends and have known people flying for 25+ years. It can be scary but you have the odds in your favor.

Some random stats I found on google quickly. I'm sure they're not 100% but I mean close enough lol.

What are the chances of dying in a plane crash?

Of these 24 million hours, 6.84 of every 100,000 flight hours yielded an airplane crash, and 1.19 of every 100,000 yielded a fatal crash.

Oh thanks yea i know its literally most likely not possible that plane crash happens but i just get scared when the plane flies weird sometimes when it has random movements in the air for 1 second it scares me off but when it flies normally i feel good again

Honestly this is what I do. Look into turbulence and learn about it. Everything about it. I used to get scared also but I enjoyed learning how to fly so it ended up working out.

Or you could never get over it. I know a few people that don't fly because the same reason.

All in all I hope you can figure out what's best for you and work with it!

The first time I flew I wasn't scared, but I was nervous as fuck. But after that it was like riding a bus. Now I feel like a turbulence is the same as a bumpy rode.

In this age of Technology, you must not be afraid of flying.

I'm in Vegas rn. Flying back home tomorrow. I'm not really afraid of flying. There were a few moments during my flight here where I thought "man, we're really high up", but the boredom set in and I was more focused on keeping myself entertained lol

I still don't understand how planes fly.

That being said I just go with the flow, it beats 14 hours driving.

same for me haha i cant explain how they fly , but ye it beats if definitely uwosgg - December 6, 2022, 4:40 pm

Just sit back, relax, close your eyes, and then (hopefully) wake up at your destination. The whole experience of flying is time consuming and stressful.. but better than other alternatives, at least where I am. Great to relieve that stress and time waste by sleeping.

SpiritualDose - December 6, 2022, 9:37 pm

I love flying. Before I got sober, I used to compete with myself on if I could get any higher than the last flight.

Ya know, some Xanax, edibles before TSA, Tequila at the waiting bar, Mini's on the plane. I love flying and everything about it, idk why.

Vitani's Mate - December 7, 2022, 12:19 am

Nahh I am not afraid of heights or flying. lol

I've been in many planes going all over the world.

love being on airplanes, esp long flights with a window seat iiFinance - December 9, 2022, 5:47 am

Not afraid of flying tbh.

I'm very big into aviation in general, and have watched almost every plane crash investigation out there. What I've learned is that almost most accident are just complete freak accidents...small/minor things going wrong.

But OP, flying is extremely safe. There hasn't been a US Commercial accident in 13 years. But safety manuals are written in blood....took a few accidents to get to where we are now unfortunately.
