Thread: What are your favorite long english words ?

Aadgjmptw72 - December 19, 2022, 6:48 pm

Here is my list

1. Pneumonoultramicroscopicsilicovolcanoconiosis (45 chars)
2. Pseudopseudohypoparathyroidism (30 chars)
3. Floccinaucinihilipilification (29 chars)

My friend, I think you may have mistakenly made a terrible error.

You did not post long words, and certainly not enough words to exceed 100 characters!

Well, that may be true. But "Cheese" is my favorite number in the whole alphabet.

Cheese is not a number in the alphabet.

However a quick fun fact that you may not believe but its actually true:

The US goverment stores huge amounts of cheese wheels underground (why tho)

First of all, I cannot remember that long words. However, this one
"Hippopotomonstrosesquipedaliophobia" suits what I am.

Onomatopoeia
It's not as long as the ones here, but it sounds neat!

Yes, because this is a figure of speech. When you look into the meaning of the word, it will be more interesting.

Eran - December 19, 2022, 11:40 pm

This one apparently has 190k letters.

Crazy. I think I saw MrBeast say the whole word in one of his early videos (on top of the videos where he counted to 100k xD)

Juoku - December 19, 2022, 11:41 pm

My favorite will have to be the word - Discombobulated
It's not that long, but it's great to confuse people sometimes, and it's fun to know it, I guess.

I'm fairly certain my family got that cheese in big white boxes that just said "cheese" on them...
Same with government beer at one point.

Also, cheese is not a number in the alphabet? That makes so much sense now.... And explains a LOT of miscommunication I've had over the years.

Yes, and it makes a lovely thwap sound.

Move along, move along. Nothing to see here. I have zero balls still. Feels like IRL

I don't have a favorite long word but I like using the word plethoric a lot.
