Thread: Why do people talk so little about online methods that aren't Only Fans or ewhoring

The Pact - December 21, 2022, 2:23 am

I mean I kind of know because anything sex related is the way to make a lot in a short amount of time but there are people making six figure incomes with a lot of other online things. Supposedly. Seems to be evidence of it. There was even a contestant on Australian Survivor who admitted he was a millionaire from FBA. I wasn't sure if I should put this in the Money section because it's kind of a shit post. ?

Doesn't matter. And the men may even beat, kill and force painful anal rape and even torture.

But this is off topic because yeah online there's a lot more safety online obviously, although certainly won't be absolutely 100% assured safety. Though often will.

Women need intensely good social skills and psychology when their working in the RL sex industry things though. Don't know what that's like online. Other than I have sold erotica, but not to custom clients where I imagine you have to deal with some bullshit as well. I was writing for publications. Subscriber only ezine and pitching short stories for erotica anthologies going via their brief.

Probably because they do not want to put the actual effort in to make significant money. Nobody is interested in 10-20$ per day anymore. If its not 100$ per day, move on.

So that would give the impression that the answer to Focus Broken 's question is being an Only Fans manager . It's supposedly "effortless" to make big money with that? While all these people making six figures off FBA or whatever are slaving their guts out? I mean FBA sounds easy on the surface, but not sure if you're supposed to put physical labels on yourself at home or if the shipping and stuff becomes some kind of pain somehow?

M8 people are all over the forums talking about how they make their money.

Sadly most of them are trying to sell the method instead of giving us hints.

The reason OF and shit like that is talked about so much is what I feel to be people trying to brag like Andrew Tate.

MightyOne - December 21, 2022, 7:03 am

Usually when people sell their methods, its because that even if they make money, the method itself isn't sustainable for the long-term or a lot of work and people want to up their revenue.

Plus, people understood that why doing 10k$ a month themselves from home, if they can sell their method for hundreds of people and make 20k$ per person who bought the method?

In the end, E-whoring is much less sustianable nowadays I believe unless you find actual sharks with good fetishes to make actual money. if not, it won't be higher then a normal paying job.

Honestly, seems so much harder to make money online these days.

Years ago you could come online and find something within a few hours.. But I've been looking for something new for so long now..

I'd happily work for under min wage online next year so I could do it from Thailand.. (even like $5-$6 an hour would work)

Well I worked online doing print on demand for six months before I made one cent but now I make money from it but not a lot but I made $2700 US after a year and a half which is fine because it's pretty effortless to do.

+mK - December 22, 2022, 3:37 pm

I'm not shaming anyone for doing it, but I think it takes far less effort to simply do something sexual than it does to think of a method of generating revenue. OF is so prominent because ANYONE can do it, and I mean anyone.

It depends on the hours you put into it really, I have a laser (Mira 9) as I put the last of my money into it last year and honestly.. It's less than min wage so I've kinda gave up on it and just put more hours in at work..

The laser cost me about 11k all in which is vile as I've probably made about 1k back from it in a year.

Was a fun experience for me and the kids though.. Ever cloud

I'd sell the laser for about 5k but it took 4 of us about 2 hours to get it in the house and I'm dreading getting it back out.

You realise there's ways to do it that don't require a laser at all. Lol. You get a much more tiny percent on sales but you are paying hardly any upfront costs so..... and I'd basically just upload one design a night which took maybe 20 or 30 minutes each to re-size and then optimise on 96 procuts on two different sites or like close to 200 optimisations takes some time, and then just make nothing for ages but gradually tiny amounts dribble in and then you see over a year and a half you made $2700 so yeah it's pin money I guess but easy and fun extra money.

Except sometimes I guess it took a lot longer than 20 or 30 minutes because of tech problems with various things being glitchy.

I was debating making files and selling them on etsy, I could show what the files look like finished as I have the laser as well.

Some of the stuff I made was really good.. But everyone nearby is poor from the current state of the world and I was having no luck selling online

A post from Australian Survivor. That would take a lot of effort. What video editing software would you use to take a clip from a piracy site of a copy of an old show. I seriously would love to know this.

E whoring is the most despicable shit you can do in all the sections of any forum.

Bro

The blackmail is the worst, I'm against.

Velma - December 22, 2022, 6:19 pm

If your method is working and making money, why would you need to sell it or share it and make it saturated, people only sell their methods because its no longer a good cash cow.

Why would you share / sell something that makes you 6+ figs per year, Just does not make sense.

If someone is trying to extort a pedophile who thinks you are 14....that is a felony in the USA.

I happen to know because someone in the USA was trying to extort me for $500 US and I looked it up. He was an idiot. I figured out who it was and I didn't pay anything. He was like "We know where your kids go to school. Pay us $500 via Paypal" He didn't know, or the email would have said the actual names of their schools. lol What an asshole. Plus was someone in the USA and I'm not there. lol

I laughed because I legit thought he was making a thread to say he was deleting the ewhore section. But it was only to announce where it had been moved to.

The ones making the most out of the ewhore section aren't people pretending to be girls, it's the ones that have setup an agency and got the girls working for them.

The ones impersonating girls nowadays are making absolute crumbs. [BRAND NAME REMOVED] is ridiculously hard to get a start on, and OnlyFans are stepping their game up on verifying profiles.

Nate - December 22, 2022, 7:54 pm

I believe most of them are just saturated with IG methods as well. Everyone seems to have methods either it be ewhoring, only fans, drop shipping, amazon fulfilment etc.

I agree, there are tons of better ways to make money online. People tend to keep these things to themselves but I wish it was more of a discussion here. I would definitely share my methods if other people would discuss theirs. But the reality is that people are greedy.

I have always been surprised on how much money is in all of it, but I am not tempted to start ewhoring to make money regardless of my situation, lol. Some guy on a dating site was like "send me pics of your feet. Send pics of your feet." He was actually really hot, but I was too lazy to even photograph my feet.

Why would you share / sell something that makes you 6+ figs per year, Just does not make sense. This is common thinking that isn't necessarily true, for the simple reason that you can scale your business by selling your method while you have lots of other people working for you doing the method that you give a cut too then you sell a course which is even more lucrative and spend your time making the videos. Some of these things aren't going to get saturated really because if you're creative there are other ways to do it.

But it's only lucrative when they make the courses outrageously expensive and that keeps the method from getting saturated because the numbers buying the courses are the few willing to spend that much. And the people who buy don't necessarily make that much because they may lack creative ideas and may suck at marketing and following the method. And their English may suck to much to get the results of the course seller. I see people like "I buy course why for not me it work? I cannot help my terrible techniques of English."
