Thread: Ye \(Kanye West\) is what Trump promised to be\(discussion\)

If you are a liberal you probably don't like either so this a isn't for you. But most of us loved Trump because he held his supposed faith in high regard, was pro-life, pro-gun, pro-white, anti-white guilt, pro-bringing the country back together, and was tapped into meme culture somewhat.

Now he's just a fatter Kevin McCarthy where Ye is literally all that and more. A black man, the most influential black man, actually the most influential man ever possibly, who wants to stop anti-white racism through love and religion as it should be. Whites are ready to reciprocate, and he is the only presidential candidate so far to even mention white people.

Sure he has 1% of winning just like the NYT said about Trump vs Hillary, sure people think he's mentally ill and not just scrutinized more than anyone in history. They are throwing all the same stuff at Ye but it isn't sticking. Ye loves everyone and makes that crystal clear, and is going to turn this election on its head. As of now I plan to vote for him, I hope he gets a party nomination and isn't independent but I don't care I will still vote for him. There is no such thing as a spoiler vote and I'd rather 4 more years of Biden than Zion Don, at least more people who wake up to the clown world. Thoughts?

If Kanye West is for real which I very much doubt since it all seems like Kabuki theatre to me, there is no way they will allow him to win. After the Trump debacle, I don't know how people still think voting makes a difference.

I agree they won't let him win in the same ways they wouldn't let Trump win but probably even harder. But stealing the hardcore evangelical base and already have the black vote in the bag, he will at least make it to a debate and push the GOP nominee further right or spoil for it him if he won't. Don't you think?

It's a real blackpill to just say that voting doesn't make a difference. I mean you are write on a federal level for sure. However local politics is almost most important for the individual and that can still be affected by voting don't you think? This coming from a stop the steal rally attendee, etc to preface so I totally understand what you are saying.

But if we can't make voting work, then the country isn't just going to like fall out of leftoid power, we will just be sent to gulags and forced to fly LGBT flags lol. There won't be a civil war, J6 showed we aren't ready, and probably ever to create a non-political solution.

What about Ron DeStanis?

You think Kanye has the "black vote" in the bag, you're dead wrong. Black women are the majority voters in the black vote and Kanye has never been popular with black women. The majority of his listeners have been white men.

You do realise that Kayne only got 60,000 votes in the whole country last time right? But I have no doubt he will get more in this next election. He doesn't have the black vote in the bag though. This was a racist assumption Elon Musk and a couple of Republican operatives made and is why they talked him into running thinking he'd scrape votes off Biden and that totally failed.

So wait are you saying that you're voting for the Birthday Party? That's Kayne's party name you know. Clown World. But yes you must have a go at voting for third party. Trump might run third party as well.
