Waddup HF,

Nothing to really be said in this post mainly just made it for bytes XD

Just to make sure I don't get warning levels for spamming here's a random question for you forum lurkers :)

Back to the topic about aliens and shit, so I guess Nasa discovered other planets that have fucking oceans on them and what's funny is only 5% of our oceans have been explored so how who fucking knows what kind of subnautica shit could be on the other planets oceans.

What do you guys think...

or maybe we have discovered them the public just doesn't know about it
