

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Lowest fee Debit Card to BTC exchange?

Exgroyper - December 23, 2022, 9:56 pm

When I first got into BTC I would use circle and they were always so good, and I thought I was done with BTC when they shutdown the exchange. Then I tried to use Coinbase for a while, but they would always have dumbass glitches, non existent support, arbitrary limits and an inability to broadcast with fees that were like 20% if felt like.

Wish I could use cash app but was banned (probably because I was really dumb and sent BTC to bustabit lol), I used to use mixers before most got shutdown. Used them for almost as long they had the exchange, but after I set my jobs direct deposits there they shut me down. Was a wake up call that you shouldn't be putting that much money every month in app with stupid fine prints.

Tried Strike, couldn't past a $25 max per day and shitty support. I liked cex.io but it felt like the fees were sky high trading off the platform. Crypto.com and Kraken are stupid and I can't get approved. Then used LBC but got scammed by an extremely reputable trader so I cut my losses and left. Paxful is a pain in the ass.

Used a bitcoin ATM for a while which was just inconvenient because I buy and sell at least once daily. And now I live too far from any.

Now I use blockchain.com it's fees are just as bad as Coinbase though (except faster, limits are like 250k a day and they broadcast at a medium speed)

Wondering if there was a reputable exchange that charges the smallest fees that will keep them profitable (I get gas fees cannot be avoided). Is the best exchange here in the crypto buying section or should I stay away while since im new to avoid selective scamming? Thank you!

Omniscient - December 23, 2022, 10:26 pm

It looks like your own activity has shortened the options list to absolutely nothing. I didn't see you mention Gemini. But my guess if you can't get approved at Kraken and Crypto.com then Gemini might deny you as well.

Exgroyper - December 23, 2022, 10:29 pm

(Dec 23, 2022 11:26 PM)Admin Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It looks like your own activity has shortened the options list to absolutely nothing. I didn't see you mention Gemini. But my guess if you can't get approved at Kraken and Crypto.com then Gemini might deny you as well.

I'll have too look back at what happened with those two and will checkout Gemini. Thanks mate!!

Is exchanging crypto here usually safe. Thanks for helping.