Thread: Taking a piss in the room changed my life

f o r m i d a b l e - January 1, 2023, 10:43 am

Life has been easier taking a piss in container bottles, preferably a 64 oz. I have experienced reduced stress and anxiety. How I wash my hands is simply using a water dispenser. I recommend this to the world, so my next objective is to use one for car traveling. This would be a hot selling invention if sold on Shopify guaranteed. The smell varies I guess, but I would like to see other's experience this onward. My piss smells like gunpowder and horsechestnuts.

How we made it to the year 2023 is beyond me.

This is pretty gross, but ngl I've done this when I've been shitfaced and couldn't make it to the bathroom.

Store piss as trophies? Are you for real?

Obviously you save them for later when you're thirsty

That was what I was thinking, what a waste of perfectly good piss otherwise.

So basically you inhale jenkem? Interesting, if that's your thing.

Midi-Chlorian - January 15, 2023, 7:49 am

Next morning yes.

In 2023 we will have flying cars

2023: People piss in bottles

Haaks - January 16, 2023, 10:34 am

Do you save the bottles as a trophie and ranking them by color

jcole - January 16, 2023, 4:45 pm

After my knee surgery I couldn't get up to use the bathroom regularly and often used big ocean spray bottles to pee in. Props OP for bringing light on to a subject not many speak about

Omniscient - January 16, 2023, 4:47 pm

Can I ask what anxiety you have about using the bathroom at your house? It's not normal to pee in containers.

Is it a shared bathroom? Is it dirty? Are you obese and just have discomfort sitting on the toilet?

What exactly is the issue?

dunesands - January 16, 2023, 6:14 pm

i dunno how to even piss anymore after reading this
