Thread: Did you get a COVID vaccine?

akhi - January 5, 2023, 7:55 pm

I was originally against these, but had to get one for several of the jobs I applied for.

Arm is sore. Maybe I won't wake up with a hunger for human flesh.

Key - January 5, 2023, 7:57 pm

I have been vaccinated 2 times, and it was the worst feeling I EVER felt, it was in the period where they forced you otherwise you can't do a shit, anyways, I'm anti-vax, I will NEVER ever touch that shit again.

It gave me COVID my first try. That was in 2021. I just went back today.

I saw your post on the Warriors recruitment thread, good luck!

It was an inactive vaccine, meaning it did not have the virus inside it.

It basically just tells your body, hey this is what Covid looks like, if it comes back fuck it up.

You were going to get Covid either way, probably were already exposed to it and asymptomatic at the time you got the vaccine.

nnicco - January 5, 2023, 8:24 pm

You really only need 2 and that is what a lot of people recommend. Taking one vaccine can make you sick and even the other, making it not worth it. Many jobs require you to be vaccinated, so there's not much you can do.

What vaccine did you take? Me and family have the Pfizer vaccine and also done with the booster shots.

I did not just get a COVID vaccine, I got four of them.

Toffee - January 5, 2023, 8:55 pm

I personally never got any vaccine and have been perfectly fine.

I've always found it funny that since the Covid vaccine came out people say they got the shot and still got sick, and get pissed off.

But for years and years got the flu vaccine and I guarantee still ended up with the flu.

Grey Goose - January 6, 2023, 1:17 am

Yeah, I had two shots - I'm not against it.

Nostre - January 6, 2023, 1:38 am

I understand why employers are forcing it, however I do believe everyone should have a choice.

DashPHP - January 6, 2023, 1:40 am

I rarely leave my home so don't see the point in getting the VAX!

Dredd - January 6, 2023, 1:49 am

No I haven't but I've had covid confirmed three times so in my mind that's as good as any vaccination.

It did affect my work a little bit but the partners in my company all agreed that if clients don't want to work with us due to vaccination status they can go find someone else to do their work.

Yes i took 2 doses of indian covid vaccine & imho i think its doing wonders.

Talking honestly about my country no one here wears a mask now 80%+ took doses & covid is barely visible here

I got the vax four times baby! My son got Covid and I didn't get it, but maybe it was because he stayed in his room. Idk. I've never had Covid.

Bastille - January 7, 2023, 12:30 am

Never been vaccinated, got the covid just 1 time, this year in July, I was sick and that's all, I wasn't dying, was like a flu.

1-2 years ago in France when you were not vaccinated you weren't able to go out, at restaurants, cinemas, etc ...

The French president said that he will do everything he can to piss off not vaccinated people (what a mature behavior ?). I don't think vaccination was useful for everyone, I mainly think that pharmaceutical lobbies forced every government to ask to its people to get vaccinated otherwise pharmaceutical lobbies will not give a single dose. It was useful for sick people, for old people, but not everyone. In Fance the medias used to say that hospitals were full of people who got the covid, then you ask to hospitals and they say : no there are no more people than usually.

When you died in hospitals for something else than covid, they mentioned you got the covid so you died from the covid, just to increase the deaths, that was Fucking stupid.

I don't think the earth is flat, I don't think there are reptilians in governments, but I do think that the vaccination was not legit.

Had the virus, got over it, not much different than a bad flu.

Yin Yang - January 7, 2023, 12:16 pm

I got the first two from pfizer. And then a booster last year (and got the flu shot at the same time and fcked me up).

I didn't take any this year.

Andrew45 - January 7, 2023, 2:03 pm

Definitely yes, I collected two vaccines in short.

Baby - January 7, 2023, 5:40 pm

I got all of the required vaccines & ended up getting Covid twice afterwards. I currently have it for the 3rd time.

otherworldly - January 8, 2023, 1:23 am

I got the two from pfizer and also a booster shot, i think its ridiculous that you can even require an injection to be able to take college classes.

Bleachh - January 8, 2023, 4:48 am

Me and my sister were the only ones in my extended family not to get the vaccine. Most people I speak to now regret having theirs. They still get covid, they still get just as sick as without the vaccine. I can understand if you're in a high risk group but otherwise I don't think people should be having them.

I was banged up for like 24 hours after I got mine. I was sore everywhere and tired, but it faded the next day and after a long nap I was able to do mostly everything I planned to do that day.

For a shot that didn't hurt much going in, whatever it did in there sure did.

Jake Johnson - January 8, 2023, 7:11 am

I personally never got the covid vaccine. I am not anti-vaccine but I made the personal decision that there was no reason I had to get it. I'm young and healthy and had no other health conditions that would put me at risk. I got covid once and was easily able to get through it. It sucked but nothing I couldn't handle.

I did not. Such an aggressive push to force vaccinations, especially long after it was clear that it really wasn't killing very many people at all, made it seem like some other underlying motivation was behind it. I've had Covid 3 times so far and--even considering during the initial bout I had to call 911 in the middle of the night because I couldn't breathe--I still don't regret not getting vaccinated.

Gary Clark Jr. - January 23, 2023, 5:49 am

I only got mine for convenience when places required it to get into events or such. I normally don't even bother with Flu shots as I usually get the Flu anyway. I got the covid vaccine and still got covid, and know of several people who have had covid many times after having the original vaccine and all the boosters.

M1L3NK0 - January 23, 2023, 10:36 am

I did not end up getting any COVID vaccines, my opinion has changed a few times. Being a Type 1 Diabetic, I was one of the first permitted to get one in the States, due to being high risk (any sickness at all mixed with diabetes is not good, and could end up deadly depending on your health) but I didn't like the idea of the vaccines being pushed out so soon.

Eventually friends and family got vaxxed and had no issues, so I began considering it to be more safe than sorry down the road.

Then, my aunts whole family ended up getting COVID besides my younger cousin; all of them were vaxxed besides my cousin who is also Type 1 Diabetic. So it got me thinking and I held off longer.

2 years after the initial lockdown, my fiancée (vaccinated) gets COVID a second time and I finally get COVID for the first (and so far only) time. My fiancée got pretty sick for a week regardless of having COVID once before and having her vaccinations, but I was only testing positive for 3 days. Not much symptoms besides a runny nose and very slight headache, body felt a little heavier but I wasn't drained of energy. After my experience with COVID and no vaccinations, I believe I personally do not need them. I was never strict on myself during lockdown either. I worked the entire pandemic, went downtown plenty of times, it doesn't seem to be something I easily catch and suffer from.

Melodies - January 23, 2023, 12:52 pm

I got 3! The first time my arm was a bit hurt but happens to me with most vaccines, the second two times it was just fine, sadly i still caught covid later on and that was a terrible week, I've never felt so bad before.

I had the first two jabs, and then a booster.

I've had every injection going since I was a child, so really thought nothing of it at all. Moments after having the vaccine, I never really thought about it again.

I don't think there's much point in getting any more of the boosters. The main reason I got them was so I could go on holiday, which never happened anyway. Now the hype has died down, people don't seem overly concerned.

There was a documentary I watched on Fox Nation that showed these clots from autopsies. They almost look like long stringy worms. See attached.

I took the vaccine due to family pressure but they can all agree with me it don't mean shit.

diablospartan - January 25, 2023, 8:36 am

Why the hell to get a vaccine when you are not sure that it will stop you to get covid .Plus you dont know what that vaccine contains and you may get sick after some years

If i find a job and they ask me for a vaccine then fuck of my life its more important

But for years and years got the flu vaccine and I guarantee still ended up with the flu.

This, exactly. I wholeheartedly believe we should be able to do what we want with our bodies, but vaccines were created to keep multiple people safe, not just ourselves... I got the vaccine, needless to say, but never received the booster. I was fine for the pandemic part and never caught it, up until September, 2022 (so I was fine for the 2-3 years, basically). The only reason I was exposed was because my spouse and I were both working in retail at that point, and my spouse's job wasn't sanitizing/cleaning properly; I think that if I hadn't had the vaccine at that point, though, it would have probably been a lot worse than it was.

Nah I ended up catching covid twice so in my mind that's as good as any vaccination so didn't bother.

menaje - January 26, 2023, 12:11 pm

I've taken the two doses and a booster. But I also caught COVID after the two doses. So I'm thinking that I have built up enough immunity? But the recent uptick in cases has me worried.

Baby - January 26, 2023, 3:13 pm

Idk I have all of the vaccines & I've gotten COVID 3 times...

jcole - January 26, 2023, 3:16 pm

I actually never did get a Covid vaccine shot, but am not against others getting it though.

Badgers - January 26, 2023, 5:09 pm

yes I got two, and after few month i got infected with covid.

LeetSpeed - January 27, 2023, 12:02 am

I never got it and never will get this vax.

Sorven - January 27, 2023, 12:11 pm

i did and i regret it

Prepper - January 27, 2023, 1:37 pm

I took the initial 2 doses of Pfizer, reason being I am considered high risk and my doctor told me stories and recommended I get it.

Although my lab work comes up good which I get routinely, and although I am not experiencing long term side effects I believe are vaccine related I will not take any booster.

My opinion was pretty supportive of the vaccines at first but information coming out has changed that for me and although I am not anti-vaccine I can no longer recommend anyone get the vaccine. Obviously this is something that is up to people to discuss with their doctor but just do your research now.

Past information from conspiracies like graphene, nanobots, magnetizing, etc is all bullshit but there is simply no arguing against the risks of heart complications anymore, as well as blood clot/stroke risks.

Majorcapales - January 27, 2023, 5:34 pm

No, but I was forced by my employer to get it. They say it wasn't forced, though, as I "had a choice".

However, should I decide not to get one, I would not get paid. Doesn't sound like much of a choice to me.

mrtrumpster - January 27, 2023, 10:32 pm

Nope, never going to do that.

Nicaragua - January 27, 2023, 10:37 pm

Unfortunately I had to get the vax for my job, but thinking about it now I should've just found a way to skirt around it. I'm not anti vax or anything, but something about this vaccine seems very suspect to me!
