

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: How often do you talk to your good friends?

Koyote - January 25, 2023, 6:03 am

I have some friends I speak to regularly online because we're almost always online due to our jobs, but with my 'real' friends from school, uni and life, it tends to be less often, sometimes we go months before getting in touch. Today I had a one hour catch up with one of my best friends and it was great, but we both said we should probably be in better contact, however life gets in the way. How often do you talk with yours?

Flowstate - January 25, 2023, 6:23 am

Every second day with one of my good IRL buddies , my online friends everyday.

Nostre - January 25, 2023, 6:23 am

Usually a handful of times per month. Sometimes longer, it depends. If you can pick up where things left off from when you last talked, that's how you know they're a good friend.

Those who bitch and complain about not talking every day are the ones you need to look out for.

pms - January 25, 2023, 6:28 am

Less then I should, I really need to have more contact with them. I'm afraid ill lose them otherwise.

Koyote - January 25, 2023, 6:32 am

(Jan 25, 2023 07:23 AM)Flowstate Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Every second day with one of my good IRL buddies , my online friends everyday.

I'm every other day if not every day with my closest friend, but probably should be more often like you with my other close friends too.

(Jan 25, 2023 07:23 AM)Genuine Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Usually a handful of times per month. Sometimes longer, it depends. If you can pick up where things left off from when you last talked, that's how you know they're a good friend.

Those who bitch and complain about not talking every day are the ones you need to look out for. Yeah for real, being able to just take a call and pick up where you left off is the ideal friendship. I had one friend who would be like "why don't you care?" if I'd been more than a few days, was so draining! On the other hand I had one friend who would not message or call for the best part of a year and or ignore messages, and then wonder why people didn't want to speak to him any more, so odd.

(Jan 25, 2023 07:28 AM)pms Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Less then I should, I really need to have more contact with them. I'm afraid ill lose them otherwise.

I'm sorry to hear that! Just reach out and see how they're doing, say you saw something that reminded you of them etc, freshen things up a bit maybe. You're a good guy, they'll stick around.

pms - January 25, 2023, 6:35 am

(Jan 25, 2023 07:32 AM)TheCuriousCoyote Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm sorry to hear that! Just reach out and see how they're doing, say you saw something that reminded you of them etc, freshen things up a bit maybe. You're a good guy, they'll stick around.

Yeah i'll try to do that more. We do occasionally talk over discord and such.

Nostre - January 25, 2023, 6:38 am

(Jan 25, 2023 07:32 AM)TheCuriousCoyote Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah for real, being able to just take a call and pick up where you left off is the ideal friendship. I had one friend who would be like "why don't you care?" if I'd been more than a few days, was so draining! On the other hand I had one friend who would not message or call for the best part of a year and or ignore messages, and then wonder why people didn't want to speak to him any more, so odd.

We are all men who have things to take care of in our personal lives. If they cannot understand that then you shouldn't want them in your circle anyway. The real friends will understand and the ones that don't, won't last. Once you focus on yourself, you'll be able to discover who is who.

Koyote - January 25, 2023, 6:41 am

(Jan 25, 2023 07:35 AM)pms Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah i'll try to do that more. We do occasionally talk over discord and such.

Good, that's good! Consider me one of your online friends, you're a cool person and I always like your posts!

(Jan 25, 2023 07:38 AM)Genuine Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) We are all men who have things to take care of in our personal lives. If they cannot understand that then you shouldn't want them in your circle anyway. The real friends will understand and the ones that don't, won't last. Once you focus on yourself, you'll be able to discover who is who.

Very true, some people are just either so wrapped up in themselves or have so little going on they like to attack others for being busy or just not being in constant contact, or go the other way entirely and just don't care and fade away. Best to keep the circle smaller and higher quality, and just maintain those good relationships that go the longest way.

Nostre - January 25, 2023, 6:47 am

(Jan 25, 2023 07:41 AM)TheCuriousCoyote Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Very true, some people are just either so wrapped up in themselves or have so little going on they like to attack others for being busy or just not being in constant contact, or go the other way entirely and just don't care and fade away. Best to keep the circle smaller and higher quality, and just maintain those good relationships that go the longest way.

That's exactly what it is. I noticed when people's lives are boring, they welcome drama and as you said, quality over quantity. I have 2 close friends and we all understand we'll talk to each other when we can. If not, no biggie.

And if I'm honest, it makes the time spent together more memorable compared to seeing/talking to each other every day.

nietdoen - January 25, 2023, 6:57 am

The time learns you that if you really got some good friends they will ask for you and vice versa that doesn't mean you have to see them every week or month just stay in touch. I had a best friend once he was married no one heard about him meanwhile my other friends they got married and yet we stay in touch once in while do something together. but we got a whatsapp group where we speak daily and send memes and stuff. so yeah.

a true best friend is the one that will ask about you or will help you in time of need and you can call each other brothers figure of speaking.

ps

sorry for the bad english.

Koyote - January 25, 2023, 7:16 am

(Jan 25, 2023 07:47 AM)Genuine Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That's exactly what it is. I noticed when people's lives are boring, they welcome drama and as you said, quality over quantity. I have 2 close friends and we all understand we'll talk to each other when we can. If not, no biggie.

And if I'm honest, it makes the time spent together more memorable compared to seeing/talking to each other every day.

Can't stand those drama whore types! Yeah that sounds ideal, and you're bang on the money there, it makes it more special and not so diluted or empty conversation.

(Jan 25, 2023 07:57 AM)nietdoen Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The time learns you that if you really got some good friends they will ask for you and vice versa that doesn't mean you have to see them every week or month just stay in touch. I had a best friend once he was married no one heard about him meanwhile my other friends they got married and yet we stay in touch once in while do something together. but we got a whatsapp group where we speak daily and send memes and stuff. so yeah.

a true best friend is the one that will ask about you or will help you in time of need and you can call each other brothers figure of speaking.

ps

sorry for the bad english.

Sorry to hear about the best friend! Sometimes some people will look for someone or something to fill a hole in their life, and when someone or something new and exciting comes along, they forget about the rest. It'll come to bite them though, when they have problems or serious issues and no one is there to help them pick up the pieces. The other friends sound like good people though, and the group chat is a nice idea to keep little laughs going along the way.

And no worries, your English is very good! One little thing though, life teaches you, not learns you. Hope that helps!

R3lay - January 25, 2023, 7:34 am

We should keep in touch with friends and try as much as possible to settle disputes so you don't start regretting when that nigga gone

nietdoen - January 25, 2023, 8:32 am

(Jan 25, 2023 08:16 AM)TheCuriousCoyote Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Can't stand those drama whore types! Yeah that sounds ideal, and you're bang on the money there, it makes it more special and not so diluted or empty conversation.

Sorry to hear about the best friend! Sometimes some people will look for someone or something to fill a hole in their life, and when someone or something new and exciting comes along, they forget about the rest. It'll come to bite them though, when they have problems or serious issues and no one is there to help them pick up the pieces. The other friends sound like good people though, and the group chat is a nice idea to keep little laughs going along the way.

And no worries, your English is very good! One little thing though, life teaches you, not learns you. Hope that helps!

Nice quote in the end but like you said the thing is just to appreciate the ones around you and make the best out of it.

Toffee - January 25, 2023, 8:44 am

Personally as iv got older iv got less friends but better and closer friends that I usually speak to daily.

N - January 25, 2023, 8:50 am

I talk to them daily or every other day, well my close/good friends.

SIM-3221368 - January 27, 2023, 6:34 am

Not enough. I'll get depressed and not speak to anybody for 6-8 months

Jake Johnson - January 27, 2023, 7:45 am

I have a very small group of close friends. I tend to hang out and do things with them every single weekend. Then sometimes we will meet up during the week as well. We all keep in contact pretty often.

laidback - January 27, 2023, 7:53 am

(Jan 25, 2023 07:03 AM)TheCuriousCoyote Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have some friends I speak to regularly online because we're almost always online due to our jobs, but with my 'real' friends from school, uni and life, it tends to be less often, sometimes we go months before getting in touch. Today I had a one hour catch up with one of my best friends and it was great, but we both said we should probably be in better contact, however life gets in the way. How often do you talk with yours?

I talk to my friends every day all day because I don't do much else lol