Transactions in general or on HF?

On HF, or in general off of any forum or platform. Like someone is offering a service to me, i want to buy, what is the middle mans role and how does it go.

Normally if you are buying you give the money to the middle man and then the seller delivers the product. Once middle man confirms that the product has been delivered he will release the payment to the seller.

The buyer will normally contact a trustworthy middleman to hold their funds until they receive the service or product that is being offered by the seller. Once you confirm it has been received, the middleman will transfer the funds over to the seller. You can contact a middleman whom you deem trustworthy and that can depend on certain attributes you're looking for.

That's a basic concept of how it'll work. Some middlemen charge fees and others are free. In cases when a middleman is offering free services, it's customary to offer a tip in recognition of their time and effort.
