Thread: [\[Q\] Metamask funds](#)

Molo - February 12, 2023, 1:47 am

Every time i login to my metamask account, there is a ETH balance showing for few seconds then it clears out, sometimes in a sec or sometimes after 10 to 20 seconds.

Is there a glitch or something? I always had it.

There's a video attached here

Check your address on Etherscan and check it. Maybe there's a malicious contract in place that activates the moment you try to transact or add funds, and then it drains it out.

Yeah as the user above said check on the blockchain and you'll know. Also happens with this shitty tokens when they send you a big quantity and you can't sell them, and you are just spending on fees and being scammed with shitty ERC20 fake tokens

Thanks for your answer, but not sure how do i check if there's a contract in place? That's the wallet address.

Then the ETH popping on there makes no sense. I will try to buy some ETH. Maybe im lucky enough to get that balance ?

I'll say it's just a visual error but not something to do with you having that balance. The blockchain is the blockchain.

I wish I'm not correct and you do have that balance but 99% sure you did not win the lottery

This is a visual error. Just update the metamask and you'll be fine.
