

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: where to buy bitcoins using bank transfer without kyc ?

TITAN API - February 13, 2023, 6:15 pm

Title says everything. ?

Envy - February 13, 2023, 8:00 pm

(Feb 13, 2023 07:15 PM)TITAN API Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Title says everything. ?

As far as I know, non-KYC is next to impossible to come by when purchasing through a big exchange, unless you use something like an app within Ledger. I've heard Kraken is a bit more lenient with their KYC, but I don't use any of those major exchanges so I cannot say for sure.

I'm Canadian, so I don't get access to CashApp, but if I remember correctly you can convert USD right into BTC directly in the app without KYC. You can also send and receive BTC right within CashApp, might be a good solution to look into if it's available in your country.

Your best bet is to use a "decentralized" service like an exchange service, i.e. somebody who is selling BTC for PayPal/Cashapp/Zelle.

Best of luck.

Net - February 14, 2023, 4:44 am

(Feb 13, 2023 09:00 PM)Envy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) As far as I know, non-KYC is next to impossible to come by when purchasing through a big exchange, unless you use something like an app within Ledger. I've heard Kraken is a bit more lenient with their KYC, but I don't use any of those major exchanges so I cannot say for sure.

I'm Canadian, so I don't get access to CashApp, but if I remember correctly you can convert USD right into BTC directly in the app without KYC. You can also send and receive BTC right within CashApp, might be a good solution to look into if it's available in your country.

Your best bet is to use a "decentralized" service like an exchange service, i.e. somebody who is selling BTC for PayPal/Cashapp/Zelle.

Best of luck.

This.

And it really depends on the country you're in. For example, you can buy Bitcoin in my country with cash on pump stations, but the fees are high (around 10%).

spiral - February 14, 2023, 6:48 am

Paxful should suffice. Pretty sure you don't have to verify any info until you reach a certain amount exchanged.