Thread: Millionaire owner of iconic restaurants stabbed to death

Cuthbert - February 22, 2023, 3:49 am

A millionaire restaurateur was stabbed to death by her own grandson after she became concerned with how much cannabis he was smoking, a court heard.

UK don't have quality stuff Zeus will tell you all he did was smoke mids. Most of the stuff in the UK is laced with garbage or something has been added to it.

Really sad events to see a grandmother caring and being betrayed.

The murder rate began to increase in the UK with the popularisation of "pure" "weak" cannabis, long before the lacing of cannabis increased. The available evidence does not suggest the mind bending drug has to be laced to induce murderous psychosis. It's an all too familiar story with potheads, see my signature. Got any proof it was laced in this case?

We can't rule out the stuff wasn't laced with something else given the facts presented in earlier posts in the thread.

This is why many members are being concerned with your illness, Cuthbert , hope you get help before it is too late.

Even if it were laced this would still be an argument against legalising weed. We wouldn't have to deal with the rise in laced weed if less people were using weed in the first place. It's up to you to prove it was, not that it needs to be.

So diagnosed with a mental disorder in 2018.
Started smoking in 2019.

Obviously weed was the reason, got it.

Don't read that, focus on the other stuff we got a narrative to upkeep.

You haven't stated the problem with that line of reasoning?

It's funny, I read a second article on it that doesn't have weed every 5 words.

2 psychiatrists rules out that it wasn't an episode of psychosis. They are charging him with the most likely possible outcome, anger.

Stop shoving weed nonsense down everyone's throat. It's a fucking joke. There are so many other possibilities, but you're so weak that you want to say it's weed. Fuck off.

Read it by all means, it doesn't change anything. You can't prove he never tried weed before becoming ill either, it's unlikely he never did in this country. Imagine taking evidence of marijuana tipping the mentally ill over the edge as evidence marijuana is safe. How gullible are you?

Legalized weed significantly reduces the chances of it being laced if someone is buying from a dispensary vs some dude out of his basement. You're in the minority if you think people are just gonna stop smoking weed one day because you personally don't approve of it.

There's a concerted effort by Big Dope and "Liberals" to hide the marijuana-violence connection. The prosecutor said it's, "evidence of the effects of smoking cannabis." Marijuana is known to exacerbate aggression. <https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC7084484> Why didn't he commit the murder before smoking marijuana?

More demand for marijuana = more laced weed. Once legalised criminals will have to undercut the costs by producing more cheaper laced weed. Unlaced weed can be just as dangerous as laced weed in some people, for they're both mind bending drugs. Putting this dangerous, criminal, mind bending drug into mass circulation is increasing sickness and extreme violence. Had he never used it she might still be alive.

I never smoked mids lol, i smoked cali la weed the strong sht and that's what made me brain dead look at me now 1 year 2 months clean.

Itachi Uchiha - February 22, 2023, 6:21 pm

Didn't read thread, so why aren't women that smoke out commit murders and mass shootings?

Explain what I've said that's wrong and why then, since you're so logical?

You remind me of media outlets. You carefully pick and choose what to include within your threads and continue to push the same biased agenda.

Most media outlets appear in favour of pot legalisation, so that's rather ironic. What do I personally gain from marijuana criminalisation? Other than safer streets, and less mentally ill people.

You're deliberately mistaking consistent reasoned arguments for a, "biased agenda." Abusing language in this fashion isn't a good look on your part. Xanax or marijuana could've been responsible, only you're being biased towards one. It's a fact, mind bending drugs bend minds and cause damage.

Big pharma and my brothers in Christ hate cannabis smokers so that drives clicks.

Everyone knows xanax can be harmful, it's not really news. People actively want to believe marijuana is harmless when that's evidently not true.

Big Pharma is buying into the cannabis industry, it doesn't mind it. This is just Big Dope propaganda, pretending you're the underdogs fighting for safe "medicine", when in reality you're just trying to get your dangerous guilty pleasure legalised for selfish reasons. We Christians don't hate the sinner, but the sin. Now, stop lying.

Nah, I guess in the UK, even parents are at risk of their children stabbing them.

Not so much before the popularisation of marijuana, which he smoked.

Although there may be other mitigating factors at play, it is crucial to acknowledge that marijuana consumption represents a substantial and avoidable probable cause.

Women do commit violent crimes associated with marijuana use, but their participation in such crimes may be lower due to innate differences in levels of aggression and violence. You might see more of them if legalisation continues. They're not immune to marijuana-induced mental illness.
