I just use chatGPT with the help of skype and I used to generate ai Images with stable diffusion, but dissapointed with the results I quit. chatGPT on the other hand isnt disappointing me that often. mostly it helps me scripting and when I am lazy too google.

Chat GPT's knowledge is very limited in the ways in which I've attempted to use it. However, I've managed to incorporate it into my workflow slightly - for example, asking it to summarise a snippet of an article to generate a meta description.

I dont know what you mean exactly but if you mean about using chatgpt for content ,then of course as i was also a content creator and this software saves me a lot of time

I should probably implement it more in my daily routine - been seeing lots of positive reviews.

Iv thought about starting up something similar to Jasper (based off OpenAI) but it's the time of managing and promoting which is putting me off at the minute due to high work loads.

I am not 100% sure this is available yet, but if it is then let me know haha

I hope AI doesnt get that good because it will wipe out all developers :/
