

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Officially moving out of my parents house

iiFinance - March 8, 2023, 9:04 am

April 1st, the day where I leave this home.

I'm 25. I've been making very good income for the last 2+ years after graduating college but I still lived at home mostly to help my Mom finances out and to save money. Also I'm middle eastern, and in our culture it's very normal for us to live with our parents well into our 20's.

But due to declining relationship between my Dad/Mom as well as my autistic brother who's temper tantrums/emotional outbursts have only become worse as we've gotten older I can no longer stand this house.

I haven't been exactly living at home for the last few years truthfully. I've been at my girlfriends place/traveling for more than half the year. So I'm barely home as is. Due to saving so much money I traveled throughout most the US which has been dope.

I'm hoping for a better improvement of my relationship with my parents and it being better for my overall mental health.

For those who live no longer with your parents. how old were you and how did it improve your relationship?

Nostre - March 8, 2023, 9:16 am

Surprisingly the relationship with your parents and brother will get better since they won't have access to you every day. Good luck with everything and make sure you keep in contact and see them at least once a week.

Toffee - March 8, 2023, 9:20 am

Good luck with moving out, I have lived alone from the age of 18 and all I can say is, you will enjoy your freedom!

Sky - March 8, 2023, 11:54 am

I got my first job when I was 16 and moved out when I was 17. By the time I was 25 I had my own car, my own place and a kid.

Cap - March 8, 2023, 2:03 pm

It's a huge step and congratulations. It's a great feeling when you're on you're own. It's different but it's typically for the better. As Genuine said, it may make your relationship stronger.

It may be scary at first, but in the end it's for the better.

Eran - March 8, 2023, 2:36 pm

It will change your life in ways you don't even realize yet, speaking for experience as this happened to me just a few months ago.

XiNDiR - March 8, 2023, 4:19 pm

I move out to move to Los Angeles at the age of 18 to be a video game tester. I was on my own for the first 3 years there. That was the best time of my life. Thn I decided to have my mom and brother to move out to LA with me... Big mistake.... Everything went down hill from there...

XiNDiR - March 8, 2023, 5:01 pm

(Mar 8, 2023 05:54 PM)Dyne Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Will you listen to yourself, man?

This is a real profession?

Yup, I was a QA Game Tester until I went to prison when I was 32. I worked AT Activision, Neversoft, and 2K Games, and some smaller game studios. I tested Tony Hawk, Guitar Hero, CoD... Tons of games. Money sucked, but I loved my job!

Tando - March 8, 2023, 6:52 pm

Good luck it's a big step, be responsible.

Moved out at 25, it was strange at first but it gets better. The relationship does get better, less getting on each others' nerves.

Truth - March 8, 2023, 7:23 pm

the difference between a boy and a man is the level of dependencies, not age.

Moving out of parents home is one level up, mistakes many make after that is dependent on school or job.

When I moved out of my parents home, lots of clear thinking happened which sorta improved my relationship imo

Best Wishes

DashPHP - March 9, 2023, 2:25 am

I too live with my parents for the same reason you did. I'm still building my cash so I have no plans of moving out.

I have built a great relationship with my parents. It was not like this 10 years ago haha diablospartan - March 9, 2023, 9:48 am

Good luck and congratulation ,some people have 40 years and they still depend on parents

Prince™ - March 10, 2023, 9:48 pm

(Mar 8, 2023 12:54 PM)Sky Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I got my first job when I was 16 and moved out when I was 17. By the time I was 25 I had my own car, my own place and a kid.

Damn, speaking about getting out of comfort zone and growing in personal/career life this man is a prime example of it.

MichaeIII - March 11, 2023, 1:15 pm

Good luck

Quote:I'm hoping for a better improvement of my relationship with my parents and it being better for my overall mental health.

It 100% will

Spooky - March 12, 2023, 10:05 pm

Congratulations and I wish you the best in life. Your life will hopefully only progress from here on out.

dom584584 - March 13, 2023, 10:28 am

Living with ANYONE is gonna cause you stress and issues over the long run

Seeing them every day is a pain in the ass, my relationship improved when I moved countries.

KyFu - March 13, 2023, 10:57 am

At the age of 16, I was out of my parents house. The relationship between the three of us just wasn't the vibe. Since surviving on my own, going to college, buying a house, and starting my own family, my parents and I have one of the best relationships that could've came from the unfortunate circumstances.

Good job, and good luck! Wish you nothing but prosperity! ?

iiFinance - April 6, 2023, 1:51 pm

(Apr 6, 2023 10:33 AM)phantomman55 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) How did the move go? Or are you still in the process of moving?

Yeah I moved out. It wasn't too bad, definitely a lot more work than I thought it would be. Having my own place is so nice, it's pretty spacious too.

?{ RadioActive Hack }? - April 6, 2023, 8:17 pm

Good to hear man. Moving out of home was the best thing I ever did. Although my relationship with my mother has always been bad, so this may a big component to why it was such a good decision on my end. However, there are also heaps of other reasons like the independence and freedom the comes with it.

I wish you the best with this step forward in life.

Vector11 - April 8, 2023, 12:58 am

Being living in a apartment for 10 years with only one parent not so great as well.

B3A - April 8, 2023, 9:02 am

(Mar 8, 2023 10:04 AM)iiFinance Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) April 1st, the day where I leave this home.

I'm 25. I've been making very good income for the last 2+ years after graduating college but I still lived at home mostly to help my Mom finances out and to save money. Also I'm middle eastern, and in our culture it's very normal for us to live with our parents well into our 20's.

But due to declining relationship between my Dad/Mom as well as my autistic brother who's temper tantrums/emotional outbursts have only become worse as we've gotten older I can no longer stand this house.

I haven't been exactly living at home for the last few years truthfully. I've been at my girlfriends place/traveling for more than half the year. So I'm barely home as is. Due to saving so much money I traveled throughout most the US which has been dope.

I'm hoping for a better improvement of my relationship with my parents and it being better for my overall mental health.

For those who live no longer with your parents. how old were you and how did it improve your relationship?

Everything. And i mean it.

Goes better when you move out by yourself.

Youll see

Drodeine - April 8, 2023, 4:47 pm

I've been out of my parents house for 8 months now and the amount of personal growth I've had has been immense. Our relationship has gotten better as well. Good luck to you bro.

B3A - April 9, 2023, 12:35 am

Got my first job at 15 , moved out at 16 , Im 26 now, I have one purchased small flat, Im living in another one by rent , own 2 cars 2 bikes (Not luxury lmao) and a sharpei dog.

Get out of that house and everything will go great step by step sheffikthegod - April 10, 2023, 2:33 am

Hey there, congrats on deciding to move out! It's a big step, but it can definitely lead to some positive changes. I moved out when I was 18 and found that it actually improved my relationship with my parents. We started to appreciate each other more when we had some space. Wishing you all the best on this new chapter of your life! ?

B3A - April 10, 2023, 2:58 am

(Apr 8, 2023 04:47 PM)Drodeine Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I've been out of my parents house for 8 months now and the amount of personal growth I've had has been immense. Our relationship has gotten better as well. Good luck to you bro.

You didnt choose your parents meaning that they are not in your social circle by choice.

Setting limits to every relation keeps you happier and healthier

yz332517 - April 15, 2023, 1:18 am

Obviously, this is an improvement. But you still need to keep in touch with your family, it brings you closer, I think

SocialMedia987 - April 15, 2023, 10:33 am

That's the best thing you could have done, getting into the real life. Goodluck

B3A - April 15, 2023, 1:04 pm

(Apr 15, 2023 01:18 AM)yz332517 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Obviously, this is an improvement. But you still need to keep in touch with your family, it brings you closer, I think

Point of moving out is making closer less ?

ChronoBiff - August 2, 2023, 7:15 pm

I left home when I was 17. I went to go live with my brothers. It was the best thing ever and it only improved my relationship with my parents. It's a long story, so I'll just leave it at that.

I hope everything turned out alright.