What inspires you to be a entrepreneur?

What's your biggest mistake?

Lemme start with mine.

- Financial Freedom
- Not learning about business skills at the young age.

Yesssirr!!

Your reasons are the exact same as mine. Financial freedom is important to me and while I'm young (below 30's), I am in my prime to take all the risks I can.

18 hours a day, everyday on the dream!

Although I started programming at 14, if I only listened to people then stuck in my ego mindset (back then), then I'd have developed much further in a shorter period of time.

It is very important to listen to like minded people and hear different perspectives. Always have an open ear!

I don't think you should class learning later as a mistake, there's no 'time limit' on these things and you could apply that same logic to anything in life; hindsight is a bitch but what matters is working with what you've got.

My biggest motivator is looking after friends, family and loved ones. My misses has helped me through some hard times and now I can financially reciprocate- that's what motivates me.

As for my biggest mistake, while I could say not HODL'ing BTC or certain stocks (again. hindsight is a bitch), it would have to be not working for myself sooner. Getting paid for my own production/value added is a lot more lucrative (and less mentally straining!) than getting paid hourly/being salaried

Ya, I scalp hot anime toys. Just kidding, but not really.
