Thread: Favorite place in the world, and why?

chris2993 - March 31, 2023, 6:55 pm

I'm slowly expanding my travels and enjoying every minute of it. Was wondering, what's your favorite place in the world that you've visited and why?

I'll start: A small little old mining town in Australia called Walhalla, I went there a few years ago when I was on a roadtrip around Aus with a friend and the town is still set up exactly how it used to be in the golden days, old wooden shopfronts, gravel roads etc with a beautiful drive through forests to get there and a creek running through the town. You can go down in to the old mine and see what it used to be like working there too. Good memories ?

Personally I love the sea, certainly the most beautiful sea I've ever seen is the sea of north-west Sardinia. I live in Italy and I'm pretty sure that one of the best places you could go if you like the sea is just that.

HEISENPUG - March 31, 2023, 11:27 pm

Florida and cruising

Thank you for the recommendation! Once I make it over to Italy I'll definitely add it to the list of places to check out, I've just looked it up and it looks stunning there!?

I like to travel but I am a bit afraid of flying so I usually board the plane a bit drunk and a bit high. But the best place for me is home. It is familiar and comfy, my friends are here and I know my way around the narrow streets ;)

Still, you managed to find a way to push yourself out of your comfort zone to do it regardless, that's awesome! :) They say home is where the heart is after all, and it seems yours is in your comfy surrounds ?

Hey there's plenty of time bro, even just travelling away for a weekend can be nice if you don't have much time spare ?

I love Italy, been there quite some times, prob my fav place to go.

Hungry4Knowledge - April 1, 2023, 3:19 am

There is a place in Mallorca called Es Pontas. It's a 13m high arch shaped rock in the sea but very close to the shore so it's possible to swim out and climb to the top.

Usually no one's there. Whenever I'm in Mallorca I go there because I like to sit on top, watch the sea beneath me and enjoy that piece of solitude.

(Mallorca in general is awesome)

Yanix - April 1, 2023, 3:29 am

For me it's always been the amazing Switzerland where the best cheeses, chocolates, and watches all together plus the beautiful places that's really captivating,

I'm definitely going to have to go there at some point then, a couple of people have suggested it now!

I've actually been to Mallorca before but only when I was young so don't really remember it too well, if I make it there again I'll add Es Pontas to the list, that sounds beautiful ?

Always will be San Francisco for me. I've been luck enough to travel quite a bit and see a good chunk of the world but man there's just something special about that city. Just a shame it's on the other side of the world for me.

Definitely New Zealand. My dad took me and the rest of the family there for a week or so and in hindsight it was really something. Can't narrow down a certain location since we did all sorts of stuff like explore the glowworm caves, have a feast at the Green Dragon Inn from Lord of the Rings, go kart racing, and even got a tour at the Weta Cave (an exhibit made by Weta Workshop that contains props from movies like Avatar and the previously-mentioned Lord of the Rings. 100% worth a visit!

DashPHP - April 23, 2023, 12:14 pm

SirGarbagelo - April 24, 2023, 4:12 pm

Bay area. It's beautiful and there are an amazing amount of intelligent people you can meet across the entire San Francisco and Silicon Valley area

I also enjoy working in Brazil. I've spent some time in downtown Rio and done some work there as well

loadman - April 25, 2023, 2:15 pm

MONACO is my dream destination to stay there, working on my visa

steamwick - April 25, 2023, 2:41 pm

I've always been drawn to Santorini, Greece. White buildings, blue water, seems like a vibe. I'll definitely be visiting in the future.

Grim - April 25, 2023, 5:40 pm
