That is the dumbest thing I have heard and implies you are using cheats to do the boosts.

I have boosters that work and complete orders for me. I obviously do not do the boosts for all of these games by myself.

If the account gets locked somehow (possibly due to foreign IP/VPN logging in) why would I assume responsibility? Most of our boosts are done with the customer queuing with the booster to avoid things like this happening.

Furthermore, I'm on multiple forums and have had 150+ successful deals with no bans to date, no cheats used for any orders. The TOS are simply to protect myself from the game developers taking action. If you're a potential customer and want to buy a boost, you can reach out for more information and I'll be happy to answer.

Finally, customers sometimes order boosts from multiple different services. Delayed bans are a thing, and therefore this TOS also protects me from a customer using a different boost service that may have had a cheater perform the boost.

This is why I decline SOLO boosts in cases where customers have ordered multiple boosts from different services before, and only offer DUO queue.

Reach out to me privately if you're still confused.

This comment shows how out of touch you are with the boosting scene as a whole, probably shouldn't comment on shit you know absolutely nothing about.
