CodeAcademy's discord server would probably be a good place to look for people like this.

maybe you are in a good spot, just try to write your project, or the current stuff you you are struggling with, and maybe someone can help you. HF is a good place for this i think.

but the first and most important thing is, to make your own research. and after if you still cant solve the problem, only then ask someone else.

What are you trying to accomplish anyway?

How much time can you invest?

What kind of know how do you already have?

Came here to say this - plenty of people on upwork.

I'm sure there are more than a few people on here that will be happy to offer their services too.
