In my opinion all these cheap standalone keyloggers would perform exactly the same and there is no way to determine which is better, maybe in specified context.

Depends if it needs dependencies or not.

Does it need to be undetected as is or you will provide that?

Do you prefer SMTP or FTP?

Many of them have the same features and functionality but it comes down to what fits your need.

Personally PureCoder's project looks interesting but I can't vouch for any of the work.

I hate these threads. The answer is always the same.

There is no single BEST, its a matter of what is best for your uses.

Base your choice around what functions you are going to rely on the most.

You can find some of them in Premium Tools and Programs section if you are looking for Paid Keyloggers.
