4k might be possible considering Olympians did that. But took a healthy amount of time.

StuffSneak - May 4, 2023, 10:04 am

Last time this was put on sale BIN was set at 1.8-2K or something like that and once someone offered that OP chickened out for better offers. Hopefully doesn't happen again this time. Looks like OP (& hopefully few others) finally learnt what BIN means.

& yeah good luck getting 4K ?

I overpaid for the group because I wanted a group, no other reason than that.

Could I have paid less? Definitely. May have jumped the gun a bit early, but what can ya do lol

That wait is going to be very long imo unless some drastic changes happen like Crews don't get ub etc.

Back in the days, there was a lot of activity around groups. People were piling up to get in to groups. now a days, it is way less hence lesser interest. Couple of groups I am in have great inner activities. I also hope activity rises up again overall.

For the record, I offered 4k for the group but after constant haggling and feeling like I was being played against other bidders, I officially withdrew my bid. I also don't give a shit about the resale value of a group because I have no intention of selling it unless I need to raise cash. Even If I was trying to artificially pump the group market (which is pretty retarded), it makes more sense to pump low-value groups with no features rather than expensive ones.

Why are you taking CO if you are not going to take it? Makes 0 sense. Just like when you were taking offers after BIN was offered last time.

So it seems Neil 's 1.5K offer was also just to get higher offers. You really need to know how Auction works. If you are taking offers above 4K only, then put that as Starting BID. Stop wasting time & insulting people who are giving serious offers.

The current offer and who offered it is kind of nice since it holds them accountable. It's crazy how many times i've seen people say "I got an offer of 4k so nothing under", but no one knows who made the offer, if it's real, or if that person even has the 4k. I'm just watching this thread to see who will openly make offers and see what the community values a group.

That's true but it stands only if OP is going to accept it.

This is excellent way to gather bids but like any other auction physical/digital (or even on HF subforum) there are certain things like Starting offer / Buy it now etc. which mean something and are crucial. I feel its just an insult to people who are putting in actual offers and OP is straight up saying Yes but No.

So it seems Neil 's 1.5K offer was also just to get higher offers. You really need to know how Auction works. If you are taking offers above 4K only, then put that as Starting BID. Stop wasting time & insulting people who are giving serious offers.

Don't know who this Trappy guy is. Why would I bid something just for someone else to make money?

If he's desperate enough to sell the group for 1.5k, I'll buy it.

If I wanted to post an offer for someone else to make a higher offer, I would have posted like 3.5k or some shit, lol.

1.6 rn , I'll up it to 1.7.

The offer lasts until the end of the month, tho.

They are waiting for some other Neil to step in and grab group for 5k or something like that. So they will just take your offer and keep it as CO indefinitely but when you go and ask for it a year later, Nope. They will be still taking offers on basis of your offers.

Good job putting expiry on your offer.

Don't spend your life savings on a group when you still have to pay rent bro

I'm just here to remind everyone Including staff, this is not a marketplace thread and I will trash post on it if I want. We have rules for a reason, post in marketplace if you don't want to get ?

My posts on this thread conversing with Cooligan were removed for no reason other than having nothing specific to do with the topic. IMO the topic belongs in marketplace since the only on topic posts would be regarding purchasing.

In any case, fuck that. Post in marketplace or get trashed like anyone else would. Crying to staff to delete posts from your NON marketplace thread is such a zeus move
