Thread: Are physical items allowed to be sold?

Handsome - May 15, 2023, 11:16 am

I'm not looking to sell trash or unrelated products, but I've got some Intel Neural Compute Stick 2 USBs and I'm looking to offload them. Figure they'd be useful to some people here, I have 1 being sold at auction now, and 3 more unopened and a fourth opened but only to take photos for the listing. I didn't see anything about this in the Help Docs.

I've bought all sorts of odd things here. I can't see why this would be forbidden.

Thank you for the quick answer.

Not a problem. If you wanted to make sure you could reach out to a staff member and double check, but I can't see a reason why you couldn't sell here. The main issue would be of course other members having your information, but also no buyer or seller protection for products. Either way be safe when making deals.

Should be fine, if its NOT Replica Merchandise.

We don't allow the selling, promoting, or discussion of fake brand merchandise.

This is something I would have to look into. Thank you for the advice.

I think it's allowed. The only issue is people trusting you with there address.

Yeah, on a website like this I could see that being an issue. All I can say is that I am only interested in selling these, but a stranger's word isn't worth much. This is something I will try to figure out for the safety of both myself and the buyer. If I sell here, it'll only be if I can protect everyone's identities.

This can be solved by using a service like reship I believe.

Yes most definitely this also would probably need to be a super good deal cause this doesn't really seem like the hub for physical items but that would make people most likely warm up to it more.
