Thread: Lost my phone in ocean and diver found it

??? ??? - May 15, 2023, 12:47 pm

Yesterday was mothers day so I took some roses to the ocean where we spread moms ashes last year when she passed away and I ended up slipping and falling and banged up my arm and knee and my phone and wallet went into the ocean. I jumped in and was able to get my wallet but it was to cold to stay in and try and get the phone. My sister in law made a post on social media about it and a diver volunteered to go diving and attempt to find it and he did. The phone was under the water in the ocean for 24 hours and still works fine just like it did on day 1. The phone is a Samsung galaxy s21 here is the link to check out the video If you can follow him that be great Im trying to share his video for volunteering his time to find it.

Happy days.

Looks like you found the phone, not the diver.

Awesome recovery. Didn't need the diver after all! But in all fairness you were super surprised how low the tide was and prob assumed the phone was well under water haha.

Awesome to hear you got it back! Pretty awesome that the guy volunteered to help you out too! Not enough good people out there doing this kind of thing.

That was an awesome experience bro, imagine your phone is still there and luckily that phone is still working great.
