Humans are not good. If you are good, love your families, and teach them, and show them that this world is a dark place, and every human is self serving behind their built up delusional image. Humans aren't good.

I want to wake you people up. But I'm actually trying to wake myself up. It's been a fucking long road. I have experienced a lot, from humans.

But ultimately, I want to say that all in all humans are not good.

I was a horrible child, a demonic, retard in evil. But it's how my life shaped me, but maybe it's true, maybe we're all evil.

I say I was a child because I have to think of children now when trying to think of a singular good person in this world.

I see through humans, and they know that. They know I know they just want something from me. But if they didn't, they probably wouldn't know me...

It's hard being God. And a human. But I hope to find ways to understand and manage reality in a way that I have peace, and am comforted.

Humans aren't good. There's literally no good humans, believe me.

There might be a few stupid people reading this that genuinely believe they can convince me otherwise...

But you can't. And you won't. Because you're a human in 2023, and you haven't experienced what I have, and you will always be deluded and controlled by people you deem higher than you.

Please human race. They've been trying to kill me. I'm trying to get to reality. I think they fear I am God and will displace them. You have to help me if you see this. You have no idea. I do. I'm here still... in this situation... I can't talk. I can't say what I need to say. I can't even think it.

Please humans.
