Thread: Botting Section

NERO - June 6, 2023, 6:13 pm

I would love to see a botting section for those who program bots for events/football/trainers.

My own thread has led to an increase in member registrations and i think if there was a subforum for people to discuss their own bypasses would benefit all.

Personally i think the subforum should be restricted to l33t and above or require a premium subscription to the site as some of the information shared by myself and others would be of financial value to others.

Just a thought, Would love to hear ideas on it.

skull - June 6, 2023, 10:35 pm

Botting is a hobby if mine. But does it have to be limited to financial bots?

Ideally maybe have prefixes be some overall topics like football or programming language or framework used for the bot.

This is cause I see two entry points, the one who wanna earn money who will be looking the forum for sports betting bots and other financial bots, while other may seek to learn, but limit themself to certain languages or frameworks.

Lrrr - June 8, 2023, 1:21 pm

This would be a cool section if people actually shared info. The problem is, none of us want to share.

Take the Spotify botting that was hot a few years ago....we were all botting listens but nobody wanted to share how we were doing it for fear of mass account bans.

Same with concert tickets and shoe sales....

The days of people sharing information are long gone, and now they all want $ for the simplest of ideas

A better suggestion might just be to rename Botnets, IRC Bots, and Zombies

Who the hell uses IRC for c2 anymore anyway?

Bullup - June 8, 2023, 2:25 pm

A botting section would be cool, botting goes deep from financial towards games. Tools and languages specifically designed to create boots all the way towards bots created by traditional coding languages.

Would love this section.

Velma - June 8, 2023, 2:52 pm

I agree, there are a lot of people into botting but no one really speaks about as there is not really a section for it I guess, Would be cool to see a section like this and see what people are botting these days.

Yeah i get your point, But botting in general, From gaming all the way through to shoe sales etc, There's solutions that can be team driven.

Just like ratting, The best malware providers keep their UAC bypasses private etc but the core knowledge is what got them there, Im talking about helping people get that core knowledge. Don't get me wrong, I wouldn't want the section to be open to those who have just registered and it 100% should be locked behind a paywall of atleast $100.

But not only would it bring a huge amount of people to the forum, It would also give a huge amount of financial reward to the forum too.

NERO - June 8, 2023, 4:27 pm

(Jun 8, 2023 03:34 PM)-Scrub Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) So if it was a paid to be able to see it, what gains would users who post things get compared to the people who will just pay the $100 to leach and not contribute or help at all?

Correct

It could double as a marketplace section? People could either pay into projects and gain access to finished products or pay for existing products? Users could also charge for mentoring or for supplying solutions to existing problems, You don't need to give them your code to do it, You can just add sensors?

The point is, There's a huge amount of potential associated with integrating it into HF.

Renaming Botting is a better idea. I am open to suggestions. I'm just thinking of going simple though with "Botting".

Just the word "Botting" by itself is honestly a clean look but also fits the direction HF is going in (more modern, more future-proofed, etc..). I like it.

Plus (now this is without any SEO knowledge so bare with me if I'm dead wrong here lol) I have to imagine it would be good for SEO purposes in terms of people Googling "botting" or "botting hacks" for example, most people would just type that single word or maybe include a word like 'hack' in rather than a longer combination of them.

For now going with Botnets and Botting

However the section seems to have more botnet related activity at the moment so I can see why you'd put that first as well.

Yea that does ring better I admit.

And regardless of the existing content, with the addition of adding Botting, that sections content will shift over eventually to share the encompassment of the new addition, just takes time.

black0day - June 11, 2023, 12:55 pm

The concept of the "Botting section" is visually appealing; I arrived here because of its name. It could become a very interesting thread if the developers of HF logically turn it into paid content since it's valuable information that nobody will give away easily, as @Nero rightly points out.

I think it's a great idea to turn it into a private thread with an entrance fee of "$100", where "sensors" are shared for each individual to explore on their own. Additionally, providing developers the option to sell their guides, software, mentorship, etc., would be beneficial.

An entrance fee?

Additionally, guides, software, mentorships all available in the Marketplace?

Yes, perhaps it may not be possible or sound crazy (correct me if i am committing any kind of infringement by mentioning the above, logically, I have said it for educational purposes and never for any illicit activity). I think it could be possible to create a VIP section for this thread, and I don't say this just for my personal interest but for the interest of other individuals and developers who are already here or will come to HF.

Maybe it is the best option to prevent this thread from dying in the attempt, although I hope I am wrong and that people with knowledge in this field would be willing to share their experiences.?

Be careful suggesting limiting content or creating pay walls. Those types of suggestions usually don't end well. This would have to be a section available to registered users

It has simply been a suggestion regarding the entry fee based on the value of this field, and because no one is going to be willing to share this information for free around here. You give me -10 popularity with a message saying "You smell like a multi" when there are Vouches on HF for +$750. Lol , maybe the upgrade systems should be improved so that asshole without brain like you don't use them.

Without wings, it flies, without hands, it's touched,

It hides in books and resides in bits.

Whoever possesses it holds power in their hands,

Unveiling secrets, unleashing new blueprints.

You're an idiot who doesn't read threads and attributes quotes to the wrong people. Get a grip Marshall.

Also, please don't complain about pop, it's tacky

I feel so incredibly insulted! How dare you say such a thing to a precious capitalist? It's absolutely unthinkable! ?

This is bad and stupid idea for various reasons.
There is many contributors and people around this forum that are sharing knowledge for free.
Your statement that "it's valuable information that nobody will give away easily" is false. Majority of knowledge and things related to Botnets and Botting can be learn totally free of charge.

This option exist, it is called Marketplace. Everyone is welcomed to market and sell their product as long as it comply with HF Rules - i would suggest you to read them - Help Docs.

Happy to see it implemented! My only concern is the content currently in that subforum is mainly botshops, Discussion on bot shops and people asking advice on botnets, Botting a website and finding ways around bot detection just seems like chalk and cheese with botnets itself,

Who knows, Perhaps people will start contributing botting related information. Ill make a thread and see how it goes.

I originally suggested the idea, Ill put it down to not understanding the industry but essentially the information is always behind paywalls, It not only protects people like me from having generic methods being patched quicker, It also allows HF to generate income.

Private methods could be sold separately.

That nice of you to offer suggestions but none of them are going to be implemented. As a new member I suggest you take more time to understand HF before you tell us how you think it should be. It's like walking into someone's house for the first time and telling them how they should renovate and what colors would look good on their walls. It's rude. Get to know us before you start telling us what you think we should be doing. Maybe what we're doing will make sense to you once you're here for a while.

Honestly all sneaker bots and hypebeast designer clothing bots will all make you solid money if you sell slots right. ?

Here's an older thread of mine back when I used to proxy sell slots for a private bot for weekly Supreme drops:
