I'm really curious about some of the hashes I find on DB websites. For example, here's one I came across, and I see a lot in this style. Is this easy to crack knowing the methods, or is this basically a complete dud?

It's an PBKDF2-SHA256 Hash, not the easiest one tbh.

For your special purpose, it seems, that it stores Username:Password? ?

You're a legend. Thanks for the info!

Does the name & password separate at the forward slash then? There are so many like this that I want to attack and try to crack, so I don't wanna dump them all here ?

There's also no guarantee that any of the ones I get cracked will translate into success, so I struggle to justify paying for a service.

Just gonna drop one more on you if that's okay. This is another weird one that I can't seem to get to crack by any basic method.
