Thread: Need help regarding purchase of crypto

Dnbn - June 29, 2023, 8:08 am

Hey guys I'm a little curious about some stuff here.

Does Anyone know the easiest way to get cash to crypto without having to lose 10% in the progress? Willing to pay a little for the person who brings me the best tip.

Let's say it's 25k usdt I'd be trying to buy for starters and I'm not looking to put the money anywhere near my personal bank.

Thanks in advance for the inputs

Your best bet if you wanted to stay somewhat 'off the grid' would be an OTC deal with someone trusted or someone you know, and do a 1:1 deal. I'm yet to see a service where the fees or processing cuts don't eat a sizeable portion of your desired amount, but would be good to see if other users know of any I'm not aware of.

Thats not cash to crypto

OP I suggest u visit localmonero and know your options there. But sure u will have to pay that fee, thats how it works.

What do you mean ?

I go with cash to my bank, add the funds in my account without paying fees and than with my debit card I purchase the crypto paying 3% fee ?

If ur using the bank then it's just buying crypto, read the OP, he says he's not adding anything to his bank. That's why he see 10% fees. ATMs to cryptos usually have those type of fees
