

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Focusing our who a throw away # belongs to

DigitalFaces - August 1, 2023, 3:47 am

Greetings everyone. It's been quite some time since I've been on this website, but alas if something is happening right now that I feel I need a little guidance on.. the number started texting me recently. About rekindling an old love. Or something of the sort, not really clear or specific. But the terminology and everything that they used had to double meeting for getting beat up, which actually happened to me recently, I was jumped by my ex's "dude" because she was stranded out at a hotel and nobody else was giving her a ride home. Little by little her and I stopped talking, and now all the sudden I'm getting a lot of private number calls. Man text messages from a number. So anyway

TL:Dr

- can the owner of a throwaway number be identified??
- can you unmask a private number?

Thanks

BiNBo - August 1, 2023, 6:23 am

Whether the owner of a throwaway number can be identified depends on the type of throwaway number and the methods used to trace it. Some throwaway numbers are simply temporary numbers that are generated and discarded after a single use. These numbers are typically very difficult to trace, as they are not associated with any specific person or account.

Other throwaway numbers are associated with a specific service, such as a VoIP provider or a burner phone app. These numbers can be more easily traced, as the service provider may be able to provide information about the account holder. However, the service provider may not be willing to share this information, especially if the account holder has paid for the service with cash or a prepaid card.

In some cases, it may be possible to unmask a private number by using a reverse phone lookup service. However, these services are not always accurate, and they may not be able to provide information about private numbers.

DigitalFaces - August 1, 2023, 7:21 pm

Ok so the private number I found out will be identified on my monthly bill.

The temporary number is using an app meaning it probably has a login associated with it if someone wants to msg me private I can give it our

DramaKing - August 2, 2023, 6:33 am

(Aug 1, 2023 03:47 AM)DigitalFaces Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Greetings everyone. It's been quite some time since I've been on this website, but alas if something is happening right now that I feel I need a little guidance on.. the number started texting me recently. About rekindling an old love. Or something of the sort, not really clear or specific. But the terminology and everything that they used had to double meeting for getting beat up, which actually happened to me recently, I was jumped by my ex's "dude" because she was stranded out at a hotel and nobody else was giving her a ride home. Little by little her and I stopped talking, and now all the sudden I'm getting a lot of private number calls. Man text messages from a number. So anyway

TI:Dr

- can the owner of a throwaway number be identified??
- can you unmask a private number?

Thanks

Prepaid numbers do not have names associated with them.