

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Snapchat bans hudro - August 7, 2023, 2:45 am

Why am I getting banned after a day of using Snapchat for my ewhoring account, I'm only using iOS ovh editor I thought they allowed that?

Meow - August 7, 2023, 11:04 am

Depends on what kind of content you are uploading, are you linking to OF or other blacklisted platform, etc... Snapchat has gotten more strict in the past few months.

Tacticity - August 7, 2023, 8:16 pm

Hey. I am one of the E-Whores that brought this issue up, but never got much input on it. Yes like Meow said, Snapchat recently upgraded their security a couple months ago. I used to get bans and locks before but my accounts would atleast last a few weeks or so. Nowadays, I can't get any of my accounts to last longer than a few days no matter what I do, whether it's new pack, new device, new IP, different traffic source, different wording in my pics. And I don't post nudity either, only clothed and lingerie pics and vids. I use aged snaps that are several years old too.

So I stopped doing stories and just switched to snapping everyone. But after 3 weeks snapchat caught onto that and now I get instantly banned. Basically all I'm doing is sending clothed pics and vids in different poses and asking guys if they wanna play, saying I'm gonna post some "fun stuff" on my other story, and asking them to message me back if they wanna be added to my other story. Within a few minutes after I complete this and finishing sending my snaps, I will get a warning. And then the next time I do it, even if I wait 1 week, I'll get perm banned right away.

From what I've heard, Snapchat now has AI security, and uses machine learning to constantly adapt. So if you switch things up, it'll only work once and then be patched the next time. Someone on here mentioned snapchat has been losing alot of money in their quarterly reports, for like a year or more now. And they're trying to cut down on sexuality and are targeting and cracking down on E-Whores, people who sext, and anything even sexually subjective or questionable. Even regular normal girls who aren't E-Whores that post a simple selfie at the pool in a bikini are subject to heavy scrutiny. And clothed pics are very risky too nowadays. Basically if you're a girl, you'll get scrutinized.

Ironically I have done alot of testing, and when I send a clothed live snap to my other snap and report it, I get banned. But if I send a nude live snap of a guy with his dick hanging and a follow up video of him jerking off, and then I report the snap, nothing happens. Snapchat will just say "we reviewed your report blah blah and found it does not violate our terms of services"

So in short summary, Snapchat became extremely sexist and misogynistic, and they have AI machine learning security that targets girls, e-whores especially and anything sexually questionable.

I am seeing more and more reports of people struggling with this in telegram group chats. A drastic increase in complaints.

I have been unable to do E for the last few months, and am going to start quitting, as it's just infeasible nowadays. The only alternatives are Kik and Telegram, with Telegram being the safest and friendly to E-Whores, but unfortunately it's very difficult to get telegram traffic, unlike how easy it is to get it on snap. And barely anyone uses telegram.

Beside that, the only other option is to do Onlyfans and you would need a real model for that. I personally don't have one myself, and I have always preferred snapchat. But nowadays it's pretty much burnt.

If you don't mind just chatting on snapchat only, and not sending snaps or doing stories, then you can still use snap and get away with it.

I have not found any work around or solutions, and quite frankly there are none. Snapchat is a sinking ship, and it started sinking since the end of 2022, and nowadays there is barely any of it left above the water. Within a few months, snapchat will be completely burnt and hit the bottom of the ocean. So that being said, I suggest you move on and not waste your time on snap like I've been doing. You'll lose your mind trying to find a solution, as there are none.

And I am not sure how there are still a select few people that are using snap, there are still some ewhores here and there that I'll find and meet that say they have no issues and are even doing stories. I would say they're either lying and trolling, or just genuinely somehow extremely lucky. This isn't the case for the majority of e whores though. So just move on is my advice.

Good luck... I'm in the same boat as you.

Lovely? - August 8, 2023, 12:14 am

Snapchat is hitting hard on "commercial use" violations right now. Performing sales or redirecting to OF will get you banned quick.

DarkKnightDumno - August 8, 2023, 1:27 am

(Aug 7, 2023 08:16 PM)Tacticity Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hey. I am one of the E-Whores that brought this issue up, but never got much input on it. Yes like Meow said, Snapchat recently upgraded their security a couple months ago. I used to get bans and locks before but my accounts would atleast last a few weeks or so. Nowadays, I can't get any of my accounts to last longer than a few days no matter what I do, whether it's new pack, new device, new IP, different traffic source, different wording in my pics. And I don't post nudity either, only clothed and lingerie pics and vids. I use aged snaps that are several years old too.

So I stopped doing stories and just switched to snapping everyone. But after 3 weeks snapchat caught onto that and now I get instantly banned. Basically all I'm doing is sending clothed pics and vids in different poses and asking guys if they wanna play, saying I'm gonna post some "fun stuff" on my other story, and asking them to message me back if they wanna be added to my other story. Within a few minutes after I complete this and finishing sending my snaps, I will get a warning. And then the next time I do it, even if I wait 1 week, I'll get perm banned right away.

From what I've heard, Snapchat now has AI security, and uses machine learning to constantly adapt. So if you switch things up, it'll only work once and then be patched the next time. Someone on here mentioned snapchat has been losing alot of money in their quarterly reports, for like a year or more now. And they're trying to cut down on sexuality and are targeting and cracking down on E-Whores, people who sext, and anything even sexually subjective or questionable. Even regular normal girls who aren't E-Whores that post a simple selfie at the pool in a bikini are subject to heavy scrutiny. And clothed pics are very risky too nowadays. Basically if you're a girl, you'll get scrutinized.

Ironically I have done alot of testing, and when I send a clothed live snap to my other snap and report it, I get banned. But if I send a nude live snap of a guy with his dick hanging and a follow up video of him jerking off, and then I report the snap, nothing happens. Snapchat will just say "we reviewed your report blah blah and found it does not violate our terms of services"

So in short summary, Snapchat became extremely sexist and misogynistic, and they have AI machine learning security that targets girls, e-whores especially and anything sexually questionable.

I am seeing more and more reports of people struggling with this in telegram group chats. A drastic increase in complaints.

I have been unable to do E for the last few months, and am going to start quitting, as it's just infeasible nowadays. The only alternatives are Kik and Telegram, with Telegram being the safest and friendly to E-Whores, but unfortunately it's very difficult to get telegram traffic, unlike how easy it is to get it on snap. And barely anyone uses telegram.

Beside that, the only other option is to do Onlyfans and you would need a real model for that. I personally don't have one myself, and I have always preferred snapchat. But nowadays it's pretty much burnt.

If you don't mind just chatting on snapchat only, and not sending snaps or doing stories, then you can still use snap and get away with it.

I have not found any work around or solutions, and quite frankly there are none. Snapchat is a sinking ship, and it started sinking since the end of 2022, and nowadays there is barely any of it left above the water. Within a few months, snapchat will be completely burnt and hit the bottom of the ocean. So that being said, I suggest you move on and not waste your time on snap like I've been doing. You'll lose your mind trying to find a solution, as there are none.

And I am not sure how there are still a select few people that are using snap, there are still some ewhores here and there that I'll find and meet that say they have no issues and are even doing stories. I would say they're either lying and trolling, or just genuinely somehow extremely lucky. This isn't the case for the majority of e whores though. So just move on is my advice.

Good luck... I'm in the same boat as you.

aint nobody tryna read allat, I have no problem therefore you must be doing sum wrong

EJL94 - August 9, 2023, 5:19 pm

can't use 3rd party plug ins like ovf anymore, get banned real fast doesn't matter what you ovf, using it in itself will get you banned

Tacticity - August 10, 2023, 4:20 pm

(Aug 8, 2023 12:14 AM)Lovely? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Snapchat is hitting hard on "commercial use" violations right now. Performing sales or redirecting to OF will get you banned quick.

Yep. Everytime I get a warning or ban it always says "prohibited commercial content"... I've even gotten warnings (though only twice) that say "bullying & harassment" or "spam" when I wasn't even talking to anyone or spamming. I was just sending a clothed selfie to someone, then 5 secs after I sent the snap I get that warning. Snapchat is way too strict now, with their new AI security system. It constantly adapts and uses machine learning to target e-whores... so if you manage to get around the security one day, it'll be banned the next day.

I wish there was an alternative to snap that was just as popular amongst users and had a story function. Because it is very convenient to just do a sales flow through stories and let the messages come in instead of manually trying to sell to hundreds individually.

(Aug 9, 2023 05:19 PM)EJL94 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) can't use 3rd party plug ins like ovf anymore, get banned real fast doesn't matter what you ovf, using it in itself will get you banned

Are you sure about this? Cause when I use OVF to send mass snaps of random things that aren't of a girl, and are of just random things like a coffee cup or food, I can do it for weeks, several times a day. And nothing happens. It is only when I use a girl is when the trouble starts. I've tested this myself personally by sending snaps to another snap of mine, of a clothed girl, fully clothed and non-explicit, and then I report it to see what happens and it'll say "thanks for your report we found this snap violates our terms of services"

But then if I send a snap of a naked guy with his dick hanging out and I report it, snapchat will say "we found this snap does not violate our terms of services" it makes zero sense.

But either way, the culprit does not seem to be around OVF editor. It seems to be more so around females- perhaps snapchat just doesn't take any chances with girls anymore. But when it comes to guys, snapchat doesn't seem to care. So maybe the only viable avenue of e-whoring on snapchat that is left, is to do gay e-whoring and pose as a guy instead and get traffic off grindr, lol. Cause I have has zero problems when I do test runs and send naked pics of guys and report it, nothing ever happens, even if I put in my report saying "this person is a premium snapchat seller trying to get me to send them money in exchange for nudes" but when I copy and paste that same sentence and use it in a report for a clothed selfie of a girl, it results in instant account ban.

(Aug 7, 2023 02:45 AM)hudro Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Why am I getting banned after a day of using Snapchat for my ewhoring account, I'm only using iOS ovh editor I thought they allowed that?

I will give you some advice that might work though. Buy an aged snapchat accounts that is atleast 5+ years old. And don't post anything nude on stories, be careful with lingerie content, try to use only clothed content only. And be careful with your wording. Don't use common keywords that are scrutinized like "premium" "private" "buy" "cashapp" "subscribe" and so on.

You might get lucky and the account will be able to tolerate atleast 1 warning or 2 warnings if you are extremely lucky. You'll have a chance to do atleast 1 e whoring session before you get banned. Then you'll just have to buy a new snap and rinse and repeat.

Aged snaps used to last months last year, and beginning of this year they would last a few weeks. Nowadays they only last around a week and can only take 1 or 2 warnings before ban. Fresh snaps or accounts under a year old tend to get instant-bans no matter what.

Good luck.

Lovely? - August 10, 2023, 4:59 pm

(Aug 10, 2023 04:20 PM)Tacticity Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yep. Everytime I get a warning or ban it always says "prohibited commercial content"... I've even gotten warnings (though only twice) that say "bullying & harassment" or "spam" when I wasn't even talking to anyone or spamming. I was just sending a clothed selfie to someone, then 5 secs after I sent the snap I get that warning. Snapchat is way too strict now, with their new AI security system. It constantly adapts and uses machine learning to target e-whores... so if you manage to get around the security one day, it'll be banned the next day.

I wish there was an alternative to snap that was just as popular amongst users and had a story function. Because it is very convenient to just do a sales flow through stories and let the messages come in instead of manually trying to sell to hundreds individually.

Instagram does have story options for personal accounts, if you hit 1000 followers I believe. Not as popular amongst creeps tho.

utiliser_bs - January 11, 2025, 5:50 am

(Aug 10, 2023 04:20 PM)Tacticity Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yep. Everytime I get a warning or ban it always says "prohibited commercial content"... I've even gotten warnings (though only twice) that say "bullying & harassment" or "spam" when I wasn't even talking to anyone or spamming. I was just sending a clothed selfie to someone, then 5 secs after I sent the snap I get that warning. Snapchat is way too strict now, with their new AI security system. It constantly adapts and uses machine learning to target e-whores... so if you manage to get around the security one day, it'll be banned the next day.

I wish there was an alternative to snap that was just as popular amongst users and had a story function. Because it is very convenient to just do a sales flow through stories and let the messages come in instead of manually trying to sell to hundreds individually.

Are you sure about this? Cause when I use OVF to send mass snaps of random things that aren't of a girl, and are of just random things like a coffee cup or food, I can do it for weeks, several times a day. And nothing happens. It is only when I use a girl is when the trouble starts. I've tested this myself personally by sending snaps to another snap of mine, of a clothed girl, fully clothed and non-explicit, and then I report it to see what happens and it'll say "thanks for your report we found this snap violates our terms of services"

But then if I send a snap of a naked guy with his dick hanging out and I report it, snapchat will say "we found this snap does not violate our terms of services" it makes zero sense.

But either way, the culprit does not seem to be around OVF editor. It seems to be more so around females- perhaps snapchat just doesn't take any chances with girls anymore. But when it comes to guys, snapchat doesn't seem to care. So maybe the only viable avenue of e-whoring on snapchat that is left, is to do gay e-whoring and pose as a guy instead and get traffic off grindr, lol. Cause I have has zero problems when I do test runs and send naked pics of guys and report it, nothing ever happens, even if I put in my report saying "this person is a premium snapchat seller trying to get me to send them money in exchange for nudes" but when I copy and paste that same sentence and use it in a report for a clothed selfie of a girl, it results in instant account ban.

I will give you some advice that might work though. Buy an aged snapchat accounts that is atleast 5+ years old. And don't post anything nude on stories, be careful with lingerie content, try to use only clothed content only. And be careful with your wording. Don't use common keywords that are scrutinized like "premium" "private" "buy" "cashapp" "subscribe" and so on.

You might get lucky and the account will be able to tolerate atleast 1 warning or 2 warnings if you are extremely lucky. You'll have a chance to do atleast 1 e whoring session before you get banned. Then you'll just have to buy a new snap and rinse and repeat.

Aged snaps used to last months last year, and beginning of this year they would last a few weeks. Nowadays they only last around a week and can only take 1 or 2 warnings before ban. Fresh snaps or accounts under a year old tend to get instant-bans no matter what.

Good luck.

Does it included that I can't send those words in PM on Snapchat ?