Thread: [\[Oldschool Runescape\] Which languages for scripting, and where to learn?](#)

Hey guys, i'm looking for people who can guide me in the right direction.
Which programming / scripting languages to create OSRS scripts, and where to learn?

LoremIpsum - August 15, 2023, 6:37 pm

I think it was Java I used to edit when botting at OSRS.
I edited scripts that ran on Nexus, a bot made for OSRS back then.

Also Jagex seems to be using Java for their games online. Not sure if they still do though.

I would use Python with some kind of Pathfinding AI (advanced) or some simple PyAutoGui (python library) script to do a simple bot task such as managing bank items or fletching for me.

Oh man this brought back some memories lol.. about 10-12 years ago friends and I would write bot scripts using the EpicBot and one other client? I can't remember the name. We made quite a bit of money from that stuff back in the day. Along side that we would do Call of duty level/prestige mods. Which actually made more $$$ than the Runescape botting scripts did. Scripting back then (not sure about now) sort of died off because 90% of people would use the free scripts and get banned 6 months later when generally had they paid for a premium scripts they would have been fine.. Granted I know detection has advanced since then.

Back then we used Java and Python. There was also a software you could use to get in game Object and Item ID's which you will also need to do can't remember what that was called either lol.

Depends if you want to code for a specific botting platforms or client plugins. I believe both are java.

I'm also looking to bypass a waiting room that's using Akamai? Can a body help?

OSRS is written in Java, and many players use Java-based bot scripts.

Learning Java is a good choice if you want to create OSRS scripts. and you can learn java from official Oracle website
