

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Best Python Websites too learn Python?

clovaks - August 15, 2023, 3:44 pm

My memory is absolutely horrific. I tend to try learning c++ over and over but end up forgetting parts of it because its a lot. But now Im going to try writing it down on paper and see how that goes. I want to learn python as my first language that way I can develop basic malware to learn how they are made, used, and detected.

What is the best programs/videos/ or websites to learn?

Truth - August 15, 2023, 8:03 pm

ChatGPT, github copilot and maybe even Bard

Overall just find something specific you want to build and let them give you the steps or output, then ask questions etc

get a few projects in then eventually you'll be able to build projects without them

clovaks - August 16, 2023, 10:10 am

(Aug 15, 2023 08:03 PM)Truth Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) ChatGPT, github copilot and maybe even Bard

Overall just find something specific you want to build and let them give you the steps or output, then ask questions etc

get a few projects in then eventually you'll be able to build projects without them Ok thanks!

blackrose_x0x0 - August 16, 2023, 1:25 pm

Have you heard of CodeCombat? <https://codecombat.com/>

Great way to learn the basics of Python in a gamified environment. It's designed for kids but regardless, it's a great educational platform when it comes to learning the basics of coding.

Also, as Truth said, utilize ChatGPT to help you learn.

clovaks - August 16, 2023, 1:27 pm

(Aug 16, 2023 01:25 PM)blackrosex0x0 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Have you heard of CodeCombat?
<https://codecombat.com/>

Great way to learn the basics of Python in a gamified environment. It's designed for kids but regardless, it's a great educational platform when it comes to learning the basics of coding.

Also, as Truth said, utilize ChatGPT to help you learn.

Yeah I actually have been using both codecombat and youtube as my guides lol. Ive been writing everything down as well to help me memorize it in my head

Sick4n - November 19, 2024, 12:46 pm

Thanks for this. I like it alot.

never heard of codecombat before.

PeskyPete - December 17, 2024, 12:24 pm

I'm having a good time on Mimo at the moment