

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: Hurricane Hilary

Prepper - August 17, 2023, 5:50 pm

Hurricane Hilary is on making it's way towards Southern California, it is expected downgrade before landfall but it will still pose significant flooding risks making it the first tropical storm since 1939 to hit California.

(this will obviously be blamed on weather manipulation by the conspiracy theorists out there all over social media)

But on a real note you should get your preps in place and make plans to get to safety if you are in an area of flood risk, also get food, water, first aid supplies. Be sure to also have some battery banks due to the possibility of losing electricity for an extended period.

Stay safe.

Mr. Corleone - August 18, 2023, 3:05 am

Aw that sucks. I love Southern California. I hope everyone stays safe & finds shelter from the storm.

The Pact - September 30, 2023, 11:29 pm

Anyone wonder why there are suddenly so many hurricanes, floods and forest fires? It can't be climate change. There's so many more but it's not climate change.

jcole - October 1, 2023, 10:01 am

If the hurricane is anything like Clinton it will be terrible.