Thread: iPhone X - iCloud Lock Bypass

iAce11 - August 23, 2023, 7:09 am

Does anybody know if it's possible to unlock an iPhone X that which previous owner has locked?

Was it reported stolen?

Might be, that I've bought from a person on the FB market, and when I've tried to activate it it says it's locked by him.

I can't reach the person he has blocked me...

You've been scammed. You were probably sold a stolen phone. I would contact Apple and see if they can do anything.

there is no way to unlock it?

A few guys hitting me up with PMs with guaranties to unlock for a few bucks.. pretty suspicious I most say.

A friend got FB scammed on a watch. Between contacting FB and PayPal he was finally refunded after about 3 or 4 months. I'd go ahead and get started on a dispute with everyone that was involved in the transaction (FB, paypal, etc). I could be wrong but I think Apple won't do anything. You can try if you show enough proof that you bought it.

Never make a payment to any HF user without a contract in the Marketplace. You should report those users. It would have to be unlocked from the actual owner's iCloud.

Id be careful of such people. Don't wanna get scammed twice on the same thing.

Anyone private messaging you is likely trying to scam you. I don't know anyone running an unlock service on here.

1. Jailbreak it.
2. Downgrade IOS version to lowest as possible.
3. Look for open "CVE" POC of your IOS versions to bypass iCloud lock.

The iPhone X is a pretty cheap and old phone, so you likely could jailbreak it and go back in time with the updates and do something there. Otherwise replace the main board with one on ebay.

Yes I can all day long 100.00 bucks

I most for sure can do it bro.100.00 bucks or make me an offer

Had the same issue, tried with elcomsoft ios forensic toolkit (which is kind of expensive). It gives you almost everything you're looking for except icloud data... I don't think it's currently possible to get into icloud since it uses 2FA anyway, anyone offering you solution is most likely a scammer.
