Do kids in your city still go trick or treating. I live in a small town and no one does it. People are so afraid their kids are gonna get kidnapped they don't let them do it I guess.

Not in my area. Some other areas probably.

we don't have such Halloween occasion. so I can't say about that. but I think always make safe your kids

Very few and only the nicer neighborhoods. But last few years the police department host an event to give out candy, the schools give candy away, some restaurants and the mall stores set up tables and the kids make rounds to each one.

I always tally every year how many kids I get at my house, last year it was 782, year before roughly the same number at 780 and so on. In my old town the highest record I got was 1,341! Got to hand out them big bars with drinks, and with communication nowadays they can simply tell their friends and yeah.

they sure do, alive and well in the USA

Around my city, they do. Not many near my home, but for sure a lot on other streets somewhat near me.

Yanix - September 12, 2023, 11:53 pm

Yeah until now kids are still doing trick or treat here in our place.

Of course! Although I've noticed over the last few years that it's really not as popular as it used to be. Makes me kinda sad that I don't get to see Halloween decorations as much anymore

Nope, not really a thing in southeast Europe. But I do like the Halloween themed raves, they are pretty fun.

Not in my apartments but there are some areas that still do.

It was a HUGE thing in my old state (I moved across the states recently)

It had a lot of rich white neighborhoods so people would go over the top for Halloween every year, giant electronic props and decorations EVERYWHERE

You could trick or treat in multiple neighborhoods if you really wanted, and you'd always make some serious bank depending on the house and where you're at

I have no idea if they celebrate it where I moved yet because I haven't been here that long, I think they will considering they have parades and stuff but I am unsure
