Thread: [\[Beginner Friendly\] How to use Paid Proxies to boost YouTube ranking](#)

Aeon - September 1, 2023, 7:07 am

Hey everyone I'll be telling you a straight forward beginner guide on using paid proxies to increase YouTube watchtime (no longer views - youtube usually detects and removes most if not all bottled views) but you can increase watchtime.

I use a trusted proxy site (idk if I allowed to put the name)

Basically just get residential proxies and set them to rotating so the IP changes every x seconds.

Then you want to use an extension or python script to change your headers (most people don't do this and is why their getting detected with proxies)

Then just loop your video in another tab / refresh it automatically every (VIDEO LENGTH HERE) seconds with a script or extension.

You're allowed to list proxy sites in the appropriate forum.

Do you know if I am allowed to post it here or not?

But idk if it matters too much cause I know there are cheaper services per GB its just that I know the one I use has such a big proxy pool they hardly ever get detected as bots as far as I know.

Could you please share the trusted proxy site you're using? You can send me a convo if you'd rather not share here.

which proxy do you recommend?

Ok the site I recommend is Smart Proxy, if you google search it, it should be the first result, its a com domain. Their proxies haven't failed me when others have.
