

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Is bullying that bad in america

hayesh - September 18, 2023, 1:54 pm

When i watched American movies about high school the bully is always over the top. I always see the trope of kids getting their heads flushed in toilets and getting wedgies. Does this weird shit really happen? At my Highschool we never had that. The bullying was always just verbal.

WebArt - September 18, 2023, 3:50 pm

ya i never listen this things happen in our school or college also

Alpha Geek - September 18, 2023, 6:58 pm

Man, my soon to be Mother-In-Law took her niece and nephew (18 Months and 3 years) to the library, and some little shit kids decided to bully the almost 2 year old into giving up the toys she was playing with.

My future MIL did say something, but still, who let these mean little crotch goblins out in the wild?

Syndicate - September 18, 2023, 10:53 pm

(Sep 18, 2023 03:44 PM)phantomman55 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yes, in ghetto and major cities this happens a lot. In schools in the suburbs it's a different story.

It only mostly happens in major cities and cities in the ghetto.

Agreed with Phantom. In the ghetto schools, it's a different experience than in the suburbs. They're little savages lol

.eXe - September 19, 2023, 1:28 am

(Sep 18, 2023 08:00 PM)ritvik Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Some people just are blinded to the love they receive and focus strictly on the haters.

Story of my fucking life that is.

iiFinance - September 19, 2023, 8:10 am

In my personal experience, bullying seems to be the worst in middle school and seems to die off in high school. Also depends on what kind of school you go to and how you fit in.

Example, if you're a preppy white hockey kid going to private catholic School you'll probably experience minimal bullying.

You're a white kid at an inner city school? You'll probably get bullied everyday.

Are you a shy fragile kid going to a inner city school? Probably get bullied.

As anything in life, people like to prey on the weak especially when they're in numbers. "Pack mentality."

Vibe - September 19, 2023, 8:12 am

(Sep 18, 2023 03:44 PM)phantomman55 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yes, in ghetto and major cities this happens a lot. In schools in the suburbs it's a different story.

It only mostly happens in major cities and cities in the ghetto.

I seen worse bullying in rural American schools then any "ghetto" city school I went to.

I also found out rural sophomore classes were freshman classes where I came from lol.

SoulHarvester - September 19, 2023, 10:53 am

(Sep 19, 2023 08:12 AM)Vibe Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I seen worse bullying in rural American schools then any "ghetto" city school I went to.

I also found out rural sophomore classes were freshman classes where I came from lol.

Yes, this is true. Small towns usually have more ruthless cliques of friends than bigger cities or even ghetto ones.. Ghetto areas have more diversifying factors that doesn't foster the same environment to clique up like a rural town.

Vibe - September 19, 2023, 10:56 am

(Sep 19, 2023 10:53 AM)SoulHarvester Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yes, this is true. Small towns usually have more ruthless cliques of friends than bigger cities or even ghetto ones.. Ghetto areas have more diversifying factors that doesn't foster the same environment to clique up like a rural town.Yeah I noticed rural bullying was more personal it seemed at least oRequiem - September 19, 2023, 2:42 pm

I'd say it's pretty bad. Doesn't help we're in a mental health crisis either.
Probably a huge cause of it.

Coconwoods - September 20, 2023, 3:31 pm

It's really bad and especially worse online

BlackMale - September 20, 2023, 10:26 pm

I think the rise of bullying has actually calmed down.

ixas - September 25, 2023, 11:37 pm

why dont you come over here and find out?

TheLilCat - September 26, 2023, 9:06 am

Bullying has allaxays existed.

But the internet and social medias did not help

Nostre - September 26, 2023, 9:40 am

It really depends on the school. I've never seen anyone get a swirly or wedgie though. Usually, a very small group would meet outside a few blocks away from the school and fight it out. Win or lose, just don't be a bitch and you'll be respected for having heart.

Pikachu - September 26, 2023, 1:42 pm

Most definitely. I was a victim of bullying growing up in my elementary school days and into middle school. When I made it to high-school there was some bullying but not as bad as before.

??????64 - September 26, 2023, 3:05 pm

(Sep 18, 2023 01:54 PM)hayesh Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) When i watched American movies about high school the bully is always over the top. I always see the trope of kids getting their heads flushed in toilets and getting wedgies. Does this weird shit really happen? At my Highschool we never had that.The bullying was always just verbal.

Haha, you've got a point there! American high school movies tend to exaggerate things for dramatic effect. While I can't speak for every high school, I'd say in reality, most of us didn't experience toilet dunking or epic wedgies. Verbal jabs and witty comebacks were more our style. Guess Hollywood just likes to take things to the extreme for entertainment! ??

FunnyHands - September 26, 2023, 3:38 pm

It really depends on which part of the states you're in, I grew up in a "redneck" type area but despite that there was never any real bullying, we had people in straight fights more often than cases of bullying

But that was also awhile ago, children have only gotten more and more unpredictable and mean over the years

Certain things are a immediate death sentence, like having a OF mom

Like I said, it depends on the area but there are 100% cases that are way worse than the stuff you see in movies, especially older ones

It was supposed to be an exaggeration but it ended up becoming way worse over time I'd say

With all the stuff I see about being in school these days, it makes me grateful I don't have to do it

SharpBet - September 27, 2023, 1:32 pm

interesting thread good luck with this

Tor - October 30, 2023, 12:50 pm

(Sep 18, 2023 01:54 PM)hayesh Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) When i watched American movies about high school the bully is always over the top. I always see the trope of kids getting their heads flushed in toilets and getting wedgies. Does this weird shit really happen? At my Highschool we never had that. The bullying was always just verbal.

Awareness and efforts to prevent all forms of bullying are important to create safe and inclusive environments.

Crowned - October 30, 2023, 5:02 pm

Parenting is one of the issues that fold into bullying. Ofcourse, it also depends on the kids character and etc. Even though I firmly believe that people are just too soft now a days.

Cooligan - October 30, 2023, 9:09 pm

The movies will definitely dramatize it because it's a movie, but for the most part yes it's very true and accurate.

American high school life can either be great, just okay, or absolute hell that causes genuine depression amongst teens now a days to the point of suicide so it's very sad to see. I think this is a trend that unfortunately started in my high schools generation (2010-2014 era).

LOUD - October 30, 2023, 11:33 pm

Yes and no. There are plenty of bullies in America but the movies/TV Shows definitely play them up worse than they typically are sometimes.