anyone else miss the good ole days with left for dead. The co op was really fun online and the different monsters always made it for a fun time. I really wish they would come out with a new game with the same concept

I think the game was still thriving even more after the Black4Blood fiasco. I've play the L4D1 and I can say it was a fun game to play.

Unfortunately, all my buddies are doing adult stuff and barely have a time to sit on their PC.

Played the shit out of left for dead 2. They still have a really deep pro scene that uses confogl/promod, takes a few hours to find a game now though. Basically every map has a tank and witch on it, special infected spawn a lot faster, tier 1 weapons and pills only (you don't spawn with med kits). The game was filthy fun, played just over 1k hours. Some of the tactics on there are so deep, don't think people knew the half of what you could do on there.

Versus mode was always a blast. It's hard to find games nowadays, at least the last time I played it.

I know

Tell me about it. None now are so not even close they try to recreate it but they will not

They have Back 4 Blood, it's pretty good.

I've been wanting to get around to playing this game. I've watched requiem play it and it looks like fun.

I remember playing this game with by best friend that was a really cool one, we used to play zombie mods in call of too

By the way the new zombie mod of MW3 2023 looks very good

Played it co-op with a friend a while back, was super fun. Both l4d and L4D2 are great.

I started out playing Left for Dead 2 with my friends. I miss the game a lot and there was SO many bugs but it was still hilarious
