Is it ok to brush my teeth once a day when nobody is around to notice?

Well I appreciate some quality hygiene practices...all kidding aside is this a good place to have my tech questions answered? Or just kind of a cool place to hang out? Not really familiar..

Feel free to ask questions and those who have experience in those specific fields - will answer your questions.

You can ask your tech questions here. Or on the specific section. If it's necessary, the thread may moved to the respective section

I have a friend who has a GTL tablet in a California prison. He's unable to get a factory reset on it and they have limited the functions as well. What are his options for reprogramming it with nothing more than a cell phone to work with?

Brush them as many times as you can.

Then you'll get some weird looking teeth.

Not a cheap option. It's very expensive.

Well, it's at least a better option than having no teeth at all ?

Your question makes me think that you are embarrassed to wash it only once.

Just look at your teeth. If they are in good condition then fuck everyone and brush them once if that is your preference or too lazy doing more often.

But never right after a meal. Wait 30 min afterwards.

(if sex is on your schedule then brushing teeth ain't optional)

It's generally a good practice to brush at least twice a day for better oral hygiene, regardless of whether anyone is around to notice. Your dental health is important!
