

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: The great enslavement of mankind - How to escape financial/debt slavery?

dicknuts - November 4, 2023, 5:13 pm

TLDR: There is none. If you want out of the rat race, I do as well. Unfortunately, it's not that easy to do alone. Maybe we can work together and escape... Read on if interested.

It has been a while since my last post here.

I know I cannot be the only one who has gone down this rabbit hole... If you have seen the video "All wars are banker's wars", that does a good job of getting the point across... and no, I am not anti-semitic nor a crazy conspiracy theorist lol. ACTUALLY Pay attention, and you'll discover 99% of people are brainwashed into the work-job slave cycle. I truly just want to know the truth. Maybe I'm wrong...

I am an early 20s college dropout turned daytrader/drop shipper/entrepreneur who took a completely objective approach to try and understand the world we live in today.

Go research for yourself the history of central banking if you are interested. Look into the assassinations/attempts of presidents and leaders and why it happened. Who is behind all of this? You will never see the world the same again.

Is anyone else paying attention or thinking about how silly our world is set up? Why is it that our world is shaped the way it is? Yet mankind sits and accepts this world as we basically just spawn in and are handed this reality of life. For whatever reason, we conform and accept this reality thinking it is inevitable and completely natural.

Throughout school, you are brainwashed completely. Who funded and created this modern "education" system? Rockefeller said himself, "I don't want a nation of thinkers. I want a nation of workers." Those who speak out against this system... well if you've been paying attention, we know what happens to them lol... Most major cities in the US are becoming zombie lands. The borders are flooding with people coming in. I'm sure this is no accident.

So, instead of going on and on about this problem and crying about being a slave, I'd like to discuss how to escape the rat race with other people who are genuinely serious about it. The dollar is complete manmade garbage that will get printed into infinity. Then wait until they push CBDC's. Oh right, the digital euro is already real...

Dropshipping so far has been the most AFK method I use. I can travel the world and make money out of thin air with just a bit of time invested into the right niche. I suppose it feels like freedom when you can get around the 9-5 and do whatever you feel like doing while making money on the side. All I really do is just fulfill orders and answer questions. It's not superb $ or anything I'll be rich off of. I'd love to scale this up, just not entirely sure the best way to do this and get rich off it.

Day trading is good too. I've made some decent money from that. Took years to learn. It also allows me some freedom to be able to trade anywhere in the world. It can be risky and very stressful. But still, I have to wake up and stare at red and green bars going up and down half the day. Eats a lot of time and isn't necessarily freedom in my eyes.

My question is...

What assets are worth acquiring or building these days? Where is the future heading? Where is the money moving, and how can we get in the way and take it?

I'd like to create value for others as long as they can create value back for me. I realize that real wealth is all about owning finite assets that actually matter. Think Land, gold, etc.

Unfortunately, we need $ to get any assets worthwhile, and a LOT of it. People say bitcoin, but I'm really not sure. Who controls most of the liquidity?

What do you guys use to farm money? Even 100k a year feels like nothing now. Has anyone here truly escaped financial slavery? I really will go to extremes to learn how to free myself and my family/friends. It feels like I am 1 good thought/idea away from reaching my goals.

If anyone is interested, please message me or reach out.

Spiritual - November 4, 2023, 6:04 pm

(Nov 4, 2023 05:13 PM)dicknuts Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) TLDR: There is none. If you want out of the rat race, I do as well. Unfortunately, it's not that easy to do alone. Maybe we can work together and escape... Read on if interested.

It has been a while since my last post here.

I know I cannot be the only one who has gone down this rabbit hole... If you have seen the video "All wars are banker's wars", that does a good job of getting the point across... and no, I am not anti-semitic nor a crazy conspiracy theorist lol. ACTUALLY Pay attention, and you'll discover 99% of people are brainwashed into the work-job slave cycle. I truly just want to know the truth. Maybe I'm wrong...

I am an early 20s college dropout turned daytrader/drop shipper/entrepreneur who took a completely objective approach to try and understand the world we live in today.

Go research for yourself the history of central banking if you are interested. Look into the assassinations/attempts of presidents and leaders and why it happened. Who is behind all of this? You will never see the world the same again.

Is anyone else paying attention or thinking about how silly our world is set up? Why is it that our world is shaped the way it is? Yet mankind sits and accepts this world as we basically just spawn in and are handed this reality of life. For whatever reason, we conform and accept this reality thinking it is inevitable and completely natural.

Throughout school, you are brainwashed completely. Who funded and created this modern "education" system? Rockefeller said himself, "I don't want a nation of thinkers. I want a nation of workers." Those who speak out against this system... well if you've been paying attention, we know what happens to them lol... Most major cities in the US are becoming zombie lands. The borders are flooding with people coming in. I'm sure this is no accident.

So, instead of going on and on about this problem and crying about being a slave, I'd like to discuss how to escape the rat race with other people who are genuinely serious about it. The dollar is complete manmade garbage that will get printed into infinity. Then wait until they push CBDC's. Oh right, the digital euro is already real...

Dropshipping so far has been the most AFK method I use. I can travel the world and make money out of thin air with just a bit of time invested into the right niche. I suppose it feels like freedom when you can get around the 9-5 and do whatever you feel like doing while making money on the side. All I really do is just fulfill orders and answer questions. It's not super $ or anything I'll be rich off of. I'd love to scale this up, just not entirely sure the best way to do this and get rich off it.

Day trading is good too. I've made some decent money from that. Took years to learn. It also allows me some freedom to be able to trade anywhere in the world. It can be risky and very stressful. But still, I have to wake up and stare at red and green bars going up and down half the day. Eats a lot of time and isn't necessarily freedom in my eyes.

My question is...

What assets are worth acquiring or building these days? Where is the future heading? Where is the money moving, and how can we get in the way and take it?

I'd like to create value for others as long as they can create value back for me. I realize that real wealth is all about owning finite assets that actually matter. Think Land, gold, etc.

Unfortunately, we need $ to get any assets worthwhile, and a LOT of it. People say bitcoin, but I'm really not sure. Who controls most of the liquidity?

What do you guys use to farm money? Even 100k a year feels like nothing now. Has anyone here truly escaped financial slavery? I really will go to extremes to learn how to free myself and my family/friends. It feels like I am 1 good thought/idea away from reaching my goals.

If anyone is interested, please message me or reach out.

Build some sort of service where you can do it anywhere, travel to countries where they have a low COL. Build up enough money to invest into real estate

DNA - November 4, 2023, 7:04 pm

(Nov 4, 2023 05:13 PM)dicknuts Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Even 100k a year feels like nothing now. This rings so close to home it hurts.

As I am required to obtain 10k a month income, just to pay the bills..

?rew - November 4, 2023, 7:07 pm

Invest young that is key.

Crowned - November 4, 2023, 7:41 pm

I'm currently working towards escaping the rat race as well. It's certainly not easy, and there are tons of systems in place that do their best to prevent you from escaping. You can escape with almost any skillset as long as you're able to perfect it and expand it.

Mnemonic - November 5, 2023, 4:47 am

The only way out is to play with the same rules as our rulers.

Dirty - November 5, 2023, 6:15 am

(Nov 4, 2023 07:04 PM)DNA Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This rings so close to home it hurts.

As I am required to obtain 10k a month income, just to pay the bills..

that would likely be because you live in a high cost of living area at which point what you earn might just be above minimum, or you have crept your life style way too much.

In my local area with making about 92k after tax a year. I can buy a new house every 5 years and still enjoy myself that's ignoring that if I were to buy these houses it would help me sustain myself (read in 5 years as in cash 100%).

I don't believe it is impossible to become comfortably wealthy all by your own, if you are chasing the billions however this is practically all luck or being part of the system that everyone always says is holding them back. But if you are making ends barely meet it is you most likely as much as the system that is holdign you back

SIM-5422276 - November 5, 2023, 11:26 am

I feel this big time lol. I'm a pretty simple guy so I don't even need a ton to go travel the world, etc. I just want enough to buy some land, fuck off and build a house but even that takes more than seems feasible. Good luck bro protege - November 5, 2023, 1:11 pm

Work and luck honestly, even though i got screwed out of my money i was still put in an extremely lucky situation where if i was smarter would've landed me my millions in my pocket instead of being taken, but life goes on there's other more waves to come

Tikva - November 5, 2023, 9:35 pm

(Nov 4, 2023 05:13 PM)dicknuts Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) TLDR: There is none. If you want out of the rat race, I do as well. Unfortunately, it's not that easy to do alone. Maybe we can work together and escape... Read on if interested.

It has been a while since my last post here.

I know I cannot be the only one who has gone down this rabbit hole... If you have seen the video "All wars are banker's wars", that does a good job of getting the point across... and no, I am not anti-semitic nor a crazy conspiracy theorist lol. ACTUALLY Pay attention, and you'll discover 99% of people are brainwashed into the work-job slave cycle. I truly just want to know the truth. Maybe I'm wrong...

I am an early 20s college dropout turned daytrader/drop shipper/entrepreneur who took a completely objective approach to try and understand the world we live in today.

Go research for yourself the history of central banking if you are interested. Look into the assassinations/attempts of presidents and leaders and why it happened. Who is behind all of this? You will never see the world the same again.

Is anyone else paying attention or thinking about how silly our world is set up? Why is it that our world is shaped the way it is? Yet mankind sits and accepts this world as we basically just spawn in and are handed this reality of life. For whatever reason, we conform and accept this reality thinking it is inevitable and completely natural.

Throughout school, you are brainwashed completely. Who funded and created this modern "education" system? Rockefeller said himself, "I don't want a nation of thinkers. I want a nation of workers." Those who speak out against this system... well if you've been paying attention, we know what happens to them lol... Most major cities in the US are becoming zombie lands. The borders are flooding with people coming in. I'm sure this is no accident.

So, instead of going on and on about this problem and crying about being a slave, I'd like to discuss how to escape the rat race with other people who are genuinely serious about it. The dollar is complete manmade garbage that will get printed into infinity. Then wait until they push CBDC's. Oh right, the digital euro is already real...

Dropshipping so far has been the most AFK method I use. I can travel the world and make money out of thin air with just a bit of time invested into the right niche. I suppose it feels like freedom when you can get around the 9-5 and do whatever you feel like doing while making money on the side. All I really do is just fulfill orders and answer questions. It's not super $ or anything I'll be rich off of. I'd love to scale this up, just not entirely sure the best way to do this and get rich off it.

Day trading is good too. I've made some decent money from that. Took years to learn. It also allows me some freedom to be able to trade anywhere in the world. It can be risky and very stressful. But still, I have to wake up and stare at red and green bars going up and down half the day. Eats a lot of time and isn't necessarily freedom in my eyes.

My question is...

What assets are worth acquiring or building these days? Where is the future heading? Where is the money moving, and how can we get in the way and take it?

I'd like to create value for others as long as they can create value back for me. I realize that real wealth is all about owning finite assets that actually matter. Think Land, gold, etc.

Unfortunately, we need $ to get any assets worthwhile, and a LOT of it. People say bitcoin, but I'm really not sure. Who controls most of the liquidity?

What do you guys use to farm money? Even 100k a year feels like nothing now. Has anyone here truly escaped financial slavery? I really will go to extremes to learn how to free myself and my family/friends. It feels like I am 1 good thought/idea away from reaching my goals.

If anyone is interested, please message me or reach out.

Damn. I feel this on another level bro. I'm in my 20s too and it's definitely tough trying to escape the rat race, been trying for years. I find that instead of chasing, I just try to let it flow naturally and come my way. I find that when I'm Ready for an opportunity, the opportunity presents itself.

dicknuts - November 6, 2023, 12:57 pm

(Nov 4, 2023 06:04 PM)Spiritual Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Build some sort of service where you can do it anywhere, travel to countries where they have a low COL. Build up enough money to invest into real estate

I guess the next question would be where to go with a low COL, and where to invest in real estate? I haven't had the opportunity to travel the world much so I'm outta the loop.

Shit is so stupid expensive now and it's pretty stressful. I'd rather not get locked into loans with ridiculous interest rates. I'd rather not be locked into loans at all actually lol. Just saw a chart showing Mortgage applications at lows that we haven't seen since the mid-90s.

?LEEP - November 6, 2023, 7:50 pm

Just hit 30 and I can feel that rope tightening around my life man. I feel this on a spiritual level. Sadly I have no experience doing just about anything listed here to keep myself afloat.

noEsc - November 6, 2023, 8:11 pm

"If you have seen the video "All wars are banker's wars" ". I have not, link it? It's also funny you mentioned banking in a couple spots in your post. I'm actually a banker myself you're welcome to post in my thread AMA about banking. It seems some of your post implies bankers are bad people... Maybe I misinterpreted what you seemed to me implied.

However to answer you, there's always going to be a currency out there. It essentially started from trading goods, to then a representation of value like coins, and then paper and now virtual currency. Even during massive world wars this is always going to be the case to trade goods for goods. So then how do you want to be prepared? Depends on how you predict the world will be 10, 15, 30, 50 years from now. Imo the physical dollar will not be as common and everything will be electronic and likely some form of cryptocurrency fork that's all managed and government ran AND privately ran.

Everything will be interchangeable. But also, having some sort of safety net of physical items that's worth value is something I recommend. That could be ammunition, education material, or something food related like long term canned food or seeds.

And lastly having a good trade can hold weight outside of currency like the medical field, or plumbing, gardening, construction. All jobs that isn't something that will just go away even in a catastrophic collapse of economies. Other people need these fields to have shelter and leverage to survive. Trade your work to your neighbor for food or protection is a way to barter and survive.

dicknuts - November 8, 2023, 1:15 pm

(Nov 6, 2023 09:11 PM)noEsc Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) "If you have seen the video "All wars are banker's wars" ". I have not, link it? It's also funny you mentioned banking in a couple spots in your post. I'm actually a banker myself you're welcome to post in my thread AMA about banking. It seems some of your post implies bankers are bad people... Maybe I misinterpreted what you seemed to me implied.

However to answer you, there's always going to be a currency out there. It essentially started from trading goods, to then a representation of value like coins, and then paper and now virtual currency. Even during massive world wars this is always going to be the case to trade goods for goods. So then how do you want to be prepared? Depends on how you predict the world will be 10, 15, 30, 50 years from now. Imo the physical dollar will not be as common and everything will be electronic and likely some form of cryptocurrency fork that's all managed and government ran AND privately ran. Everything will be interchangeable. But also, having some sort of safety net of physical items that's worth value is something I recommend. That could be ammunition, education material, or something food related like long term canned food or seeds.

And lastly having a good trade can hold weight outside of currency like the medical field, or plumbing, gardening, construction. All jobs that isn't something that will just go away even in a catastrophic collapse of economies. Other people need these fields to have shelter and leverage to survive. Trade your work to your neighbor for food or protection is a way to barter and survive.

The video is on youtube if you just type in the title. Most stuff about it is shadowbanned or restricted. Huh, I wonder why? lol.

I don't think all bankers are bad at all. Just like anything, there will be some bad apples. Most people working at the banks are just regular humans trying to get by in life. Nothing against them whatsoever. However, there's a massive issue with loaning currency out at interest and inflating it. Usury has been a problem for a long long time. A huge part of the reason why the Roman Empire fell apart. One religion believes in usury, and another does not. You can look into all of it and research if you are curious. It's a deep messed up rabbit hole to go down. But a hidden reason as to why so many wars and things happen around the globe.

If I came across like I hate all bankers, I don't mean it in that way at all. I saw your thread. I have nothing against you at all.