

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Respondus Lockdown Browser

imnotexist - November 5, 2023, 6:18 am

Er I hope this is the right place?

What have y'all done to bypass respondus? I am sure there are students or ex students here.

Desktops.exe seems a common thing, however, I'm not familiar with respondus and just know that it logs your mouse, tracks eye movement, and all the bs.

Does anyone have experience with this browser?

Ofc the phone is obvious.

DramaKing - November 5, 2023, 3:58 pm

I've never heard of Responds. It's for students?

imnotexist - November 5, 2023, 5:01 pm

Yes, it records everything you'd expect out of malware and then some lol.

LeetSpeed - November 6, 2023, 3:32 pm

Yes, there is a way to get around this software. I've watched a few people do this method but it requires some hardware investments. PM me if you'd like to know.

imnotexist - November 7, 2023, 6:12 am

(Nov 6, 2023 03:33 PM)phantomman55 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I know of the software but there's nothing to bypass it. When you launch the browser it locks down your computer. It blocks all websites expect the exam link.

We had a kid one time tried using some software to bypass it. Did it work? No the university had the record of what was launched.

The software blocks it and if it fails to block it. It shutdowns the browser and flags the IT staff and professor.

That kid ended up getting thrown out of college. He was caught making an attempt to cheat. After that the school had a new policy that the software needs to have webcam active.

It records your mic too so they can listen in on you if you're at home and they hear a noise it will flag it.

Then phone is obvious but that won't work on hard exams and if they enable to have your webcam on.

Even if they don't normally they have a timer. You won't be able to google for answers. If you have to you won't have time to finish the exam.

Yeah, it's an old software and there's no bypass. The reason is that it records everything and sends it back to the IT servers. If you make attempts the will see it.

You just have to study for the exams. I had to use it and many tried looking for ways found a lot of tools online but none could do it without getting caught. That one guy that did it. He was able to minimize the screen and go online but the browser recorded everything and it blocked the respondus browser and flagged him.

Thank you, super super informative. So now I know, I am not risking my tuition on a test LOL

I guess I just have to use the tutor I made on GPT4 lol

(Nov 6, 2023 04:32 PM)LeetSpeed Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yes, there is a way to get around this software. I've watched a few people do this method but it requires some hardware investments. PM me if you'd like to know.

Appreciate it friend, but considering what I just read from phantom, I will just study and not be a sloth ??

die_dunkelheit - January 19, 2024, 3:03 pm

I don't know of any valid working bypasses. I only know the following workarounds:

1) Just lean your phone against the screen which is what most people do

2) Tape cheatsheets to the edge of the screen (simple but good)

3) I know of groups of students where one person will take the exam first and take pictures of the questions with their phone, sending them to the others. Obviously only works for exams taken in a time range rather than a specific time. It is a solid bet though, you just need to find a partner(s).

4) Actually study

erhacour - January 11, 2025, 7:10 pm

(Nov 5, 2023 06:01 PM)jimnotexist Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yes, it records everything you'd expect out of malware and then some lol.

Can't PM you. what's your telegram or discord?