Anyone else getting fucked over by snapchat a lot recently?

While I don't participate in e-whoring. I have seen a lot of threads asking this same question and people saying they keep getting banned. Even if they change IP's and devices.

yeah, there has been lots of changes to snapchat since the start of september, the rolled out an account appeal feature witch leads me to believe they are heavily automating account locking, then you get a human review if you appeal. There was some api changes in the app as well and some emulators are having problems that never had them before.

Anyone know the best way to make snap accounts or buy them? I bought an aged 2013 account from some indian (the one that got locked) my account before this was 3 years old and got banned for selling sexual content. The 2013 aged account wouldn't let me change the name or password for a few days after logging in on my pc/ip. I'm guessing this gave it some kind of flag and ended up making the account extremely weak.

you get banned on one account any account that logged into that device is likely flagged, explicit content is getting flagged more often these days, the problem wasn't making the accounts (ironically is its right now but) its how you use them.

What everyone has to realize is that these apps don't want (or need) to associate with sex anymore. They want to get away from it to look better to advertisers. Snap needs advertisers desperately and they need to dump all the sex related content.

I'm hearing that X (Twitter) is starting to shadowban more sexworker profiles. They need advertisers too. But I'm seeing more profiles openly selling on Instagram. Although nudity "isn't allowed", Playboy/Penthouse/Britney Spears do it everyday. And some of the nobodies are slowly slipping in nude pics. I would watch Meta's Threads. If Musk scares the sexworkers, they might slip over to Threads. And Zuckerberg wants to crush Musk enough that he might look the other way at some nudity on Threads to increase users.
